

Collapse of state mental hospital system seen

By Robert Gore
Staff Writer

Total collapse of California's 11 mental hospitals is imminent, according to a report unanimously adopted Friday by the state's Little Hoover Commission.

The commissioners' discussion of the report in a meeting at Los Angeles Airport included barbed criticism of Gov. Brown, who is scheduled to receive the document next week.

In their discussions, commission members charged:

—The Brown administration has been advised repeatedly of the crisis situation and is ignoring it.

—An unspecified amount of some $100 million in state and federal assistance to the hospitals has been mishandled. Closer supervision of the non-profit care centers must be assigned to the state Department of Health and the attorney general.

—Four of the hospitals have lost their skilled nursing care licenses and the others should be in the same straits by January.

endangering $40 million in federal aid.

—At least $40 million will be needed to bring the hospitals up to minimum safety standards. This figure is double a Health Department estimate released in October.

The Little Hoover Commission, formally called the State Government Organization and Economy Commission, is composed of nine citizens and four politicians.

It can analyze the efficiency of any state organization and recommend changes.

Since January 1976, the commission has been engaged in a running battle with top health aides. The first critical report of the mental hospitals was released in that month, and the fourth and final report was approved Friday.

Led by Chairman Nathan Shappell, owner of a Beverly Hills-based construction conglomerate, and Commissioner Carmen Warschaw, the discussion contained several caustic references to Brown and his executive staff.

Shappell accused Health Secretary Mario Obledo of covering up an August meeting where the official was warned by Shappell of the mental health care crisis.

"There is no way he can lead this department. We don't have a (Health Department) manager," Shappell said.

Obledo has announced he will quit in 1978.

The commission also voted Friday to have Shappell seek a meeting with Brown to discuss the mental health report.

"We have to stop writing reports," Shappell said, "and we must take steps to prevent a total collapse."

Referring to recent patient care problems at the state hospital in Norwalk, Shappell said, "Metropolitan is just a minor item compared to what is about to happen."

"A number of state hospitals will be in the news soon," Mrs. Warschaw said, "because they will be turning people away, and this will bring on another grandstand appearance by the governor."

"We are dealing with human beings who are not receiving proper care," she added.

Ex-inmate firm on jail 'brutality'

Asks for lie test in L.B. death probe

By Joe Segura
Staff Writer

One of two former inmates charging brutality in the death of a third inmate Oct. 2 at the Long Beach jail said Friday he would be willing to support his claims by taking a lie-detector test.

Dani Hook defended his account of how inmate James B. Lucas was brutalized by jail guards only 90 minutes before Lucas' body was discovered in an isolation cell.

An autopsy by the county coroner's office later listed occlusive coronary arteriosclerosis — a heart attack — as the cause of Lucas' death.

THE CORONER'S report, while revealing "no external evidence of injury," reported a "mild" black right eye ("peri-orbital ecchymosis").

Hook's statement — and a similar statement by another former inmate who charged he too was beaten after the body was discovered — were delivered by a member of the city's Human Relations Commission Thursday to the district attorney's office, which immediately initiated a preliminary investigation, according to Deputy District Attorney Charles Giroi.

The signed statements were made to an Independent Press-Telegram reporter during separate sessions following the inmates' release from custody.

Early Friday, Long Beach Deputy Police Chief Robert Hill noted that results of the department's initial inquiries into the case contradict a key point made by Hook and the second witness, Larry Rush.

BOTH Hook and Rush said the brutalizing occurred when Lucas was moved to an isolation cell about 8 p.m. Oct. 2 — the night after he was arrested on a drunk charge.

According to Chief Hill, the police log reports that Lucas, who was booked at 5:03 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1, was moved to an isolation cell from a detention cell at 9:45 the same night, after a report that he had annoyed other inmates.

Late Friday, Hook reaffirmed his original statement that he and Rush had witnessed the incident on the night originally reported — Oct. 2.

"I know where I was and when I was there," Hook asserted. "I can see and hear, and I saw and heard what I've said happened."

Hook has said he was in jail on a charge of possession of a deadly weapon; Rush has said he was in custody on a warrant for not appearing in court on charges of carrying a gun without a license.

RUSH COULD not be reached Friday. He is keeping his whereabouts secret, he said earlier in the week.

Meanwhile, according to Chief Hill, the police Friday initiated a further investigation into the incident after a formal request by the Human Relations Commission.

"We'll get a full-blown investigation going," Hill promised.

"I find nothing in the (investigative) package that shows the man was even touched by anyone," he added.

In their statements, the two witnesses, Rush and Hook, said they heard Lucas screaming for assistance at the time he was moved to the isolation cell.

In both their statements, the incident was pinpointed about 8 p.m. Oct. 2.

Lucas was being taken (to his cell) with his hands behind his

Carter, Ford wives hail ERA on women's conference eve

HOUSTON (AP) — Rosalynn Carter told 4,000 cheering women and men Friday night that women need the Equal Rights Amendment to "live and work and learn as they choose."

President Carter's wife told an ERA fund-raiser on the eve of the first federally funded National Women's Conference: "You should say that when you think of the ERA, think about yourself... and about equal legal opportunity and an equal basis for opportunity in our lives."

MRS. CARTER said she was "proud to be a woman. I am proud to be a daughter; I am proud to be a sister and a grandmother. I am proud to be a worker — I work. And I am proud to be a wife — a wife of a very special person who shares my desire for the ratification of the ERA."

"The ERA means — and this is what our message should be — that women can live and work and learn as they choose. These rights are long overdue."

Mrs. Carter's predecessor as first lady, Betty Ford, also spoke, urging that the ERA be approved because "it is right, and the sooner the better."

She said: "It will establish the legal basis for every woman to decide the direction of her life. It does not dictate it, but it would guarantee that a woman can be anything she aspires to be."

It was the first joint appearance for Mrs. Carter and Mrs. Ford. Both have supported the ERA publicly. The partisan crowd cheered as they spoke to a standing-room-only ballroom crowd.

Feminist movement founder Betty Friedan said she had been worried about the ERA's fate, but that her worries eased after she saw the enthusiasm of the crowd.

She said: "We are in a new mood of determination — getting off the defensive. We are not going to answer any more lies."

Civil rights activist Coretta Scott King, widow of the late Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said the women's rights movement must mobilize people of good will and of good conscience behind the ERA.

"That's what this rally is all about," she declared.

Earlier, thousands of women chanting "E-R-A, E-R-A" welcomed runners carrying a giant lighted torch to the last leg of its 2,600-mile journey.

"All of us are running here for equality, and we will never run for cover," former Rep. Bella Abzug of New York told more than 3,000 women and men who cheered the runners on their final mile from Seneca Falls, N.Y., the site of the first women's rights meeting, in 1848.

The three-day women's conference opens officially today with the carrying of the torch into the coliseum here. Then begins the work of drafting a blueprint for ending alleged sexual discrimination in the United States.

The Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year is sponsoring the conference, for which the government has supplied $5 million.

On Friday, more than 2,000 delegates and 10,000 supporters of the conference discussed strategies

Sadat's visit stirs major Arab split

Combined News Services

The Arab world faced a major crisis Friday as opposition mounted to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's journey to Jerusalem today.

The militantly anti-Israeli regimes of Iraq and Syria blasted the Sadat mission as treachery to Arab solidarity against Israel, and Palestinians called it "a stab in the back to the entire Arab nation." Libya threatened to break relations with Egypt.

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat urged Arabs to close their ranks and "take a stronger grip on your guns."

MEANWHILE, Israelis decked the city of Jerusalem with Egyptian flags and cheered Cairo's advance men Friday on the eve of Sadat's historic visit.

Syria, Egypt's ally through three decades of Arab-Israeli war, declared a national day of mourning, and about 25 Arab students attacked the Egyptian Embassy in Athens to protest the trip to Israel.

Oil-rich Saudi Arabia, which bankrolled Sadat's impoverished nation, broke silence and declared itself "surprised" by the Egyptian president's decision to become the first Arab leader ever to visit the Jewish state.

A statement issued by the Royal Palace in Jeddah said King Khalid sent Sadat a message making his stand "in a very clear and definite way."

The message was not quoted, but the government communique's strong endorsement of Arab solidarity indicated Saudi opposition to the trip. It was not known whether that position would influence the flow of Saudi aid to Egypt.

SADAT gained support from the pro-Egyptian regime in Sudan and conservative King Hassan II of Morocco.

The Egyptian president prayed for peace Friday at a mosque in Ismailia beside the Suez Canal, and a priest there said "all the holy books — Mohammed's Koran, Jesus' Bible and Moses' Torah — call for unity. There must be unity and brotherhood and steadfastness."

Sadat, who calls his mission a "sacred duty," received endorsements from Egyptian religious leaders, including the head of Islam's center of learning, who said Sadat "took the shortest road to peace by going to Israel."

Most Arab opposition to the trip has centered on fears that Sadat may seek a separate peace with Israel, shattering the solid Arab front.

Sadat has denied he will do so. In his speech Sunday to the Knesset, Israel's parliament, Sadat is expected to restate pan-Arab demands — Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands and a homeland for the Palestinians.

Israel has rejected the Arab formula, but heartily welcomed Sadat's precedent-shattering visit. Jerusalem officials see it as a possible opening for an Israeli-Egyptian dialogue.

OBSERVERS said the trip also implies Egyptian recognition of Israel's right to exist as a state, long-sought by the Israelis.

Sadat also received a call of support from President Carter. A White House spokesman said Sadat expressed the hope his mission would succeed "in breaking down the animosities in the Middle East."

Arab students in shootout at embassy

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Some 25 Arab students protesting Anwar Sadat's trip to Israel tried to seize the Egyptian Embassy Friday night and fought a gun battle with embassy guards and police, authorities reported.

Police said 18 persons were wounded during the wild shootout. They initially reported one Palestinian killed, but said later he was hospitalized and in critical condition.

Listed as injured were 10 of the Palestinian and Jordanian invaders, three embassy staff members and three Greeks — a 29-year-old woman, a policeman and a 25-year-old mechanic who reportedly disarmed one of the attackers.

Peace was restored after three hours of confused fighting in the embassy and adjoining streets. Police said 69 Arabs and Greeks were arrested.

The attack came as thousands of Greeks were attending a political rally in Constitution Square to support Premier Constantine Karamanlis in national elections Sunday. Pamphlets said the attack was to protest Sadat's visit to Israel.

Hope faint for bill this year Congress energy unit recesses

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional energy conferees decided Friday to give themselves a 10-day Thanksgiving recess, rejecting efforts by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill to keep the panel working.

The decision came amid growing concern that Congress may not produce an energy bill this year.

Senior House members of the panel protested the move, claiming the conferees have no business taking such a long vacation. They cited President Carter's cancellation of his nine-nation trip in an effort to help Congress work on a compromise energy bill.

The rest of the lawmakers have been in an informal recess for the past two weeks, waiting for the conferees to finish their work so a final vote can be taken on the legislation.

Although House members of the conference panel said they were ready to work at least for the first part of next week, Senate conferees balked and took a formal vote not to join them.

Rep. Harley Staggers, D-W.Va., the conference chairman, said there was no point in meeting without Senate negotiators. He then recessed the committee deliberations until Nov. 28.

Staggers said he thought the panel should meet — at least on Monday and Tuesday — because of the importance of the legislation.

A second conference committee working on tax aspects of the energy legislation had already decided to break until Nov. 28.

Although the conferees have been meeting for five weeks, they have yet to tackle the biggest differences between the two chambers: natural gas prices and energy taxes.

Some congressional leaders are beginning to question whether the lawmakers can meet their own goal of finishing the energy bill this year, although Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd told reporters on Friday he remains optimistic the job can be completed by late December.

"I'm not disappointed in the progress," Byrd said.

Knievel plans to drop like bomb

EVEL KNieVEL tells Los Angeles news conference about his planned $20-million life-risking extravaganza — a

Combined News Services

Evel Knievel, the daredevil motorcyclist who begins serving a six-month jail term Monday for assaulting the author of a book about him, said Friday his next stunt will be a 40,000-foot jump from a B29 airplane into a haystack — without a parachute.

Knievel said he's being paid $20 million for the jump, half from an unidentified sponsor and the other half for television rights.

"I'm getting all the money up front and I'm going to spend it all before I jump," he told a Los Angeles news conference.

Knievel, 39, said he would be "dropped like a bomb" from an airplane flying over a casino or parking lot in either Las Vegas or Atlantic City, N.J., on July 4. He said he will aim for one of 13 haystacks, and bettors will be wagering on which one he'll hit.

"If I don't make it, the bettors will get their money back."

He said a wartime pilot landed in a lake without a parachute and survived because he didn't have a spleen, "so I will have my spleen removed before I jump. . . I'll hit at 100 to 125 miles per hour."

Medical experts said there was no specific reason for having the spleen removed other than avoiding having it rupture as other organs might in such a fall.

He said he also would have a device surgically implanted in his chest that would act as a "homing device" and direct me toward the haystacks. He did not elaborate.

Howard Cosell

A deputy Los Angeles city attorney said Friday she will decide within the next few days whether sportscaster Howard Cosell should be prosecuted for allegedly striking a sports columnist.

Cosell was absent Thursday evening when an informal hearing, attended by attorneys for Cosell and for Philadelphia Daily News columnist Stan Hochman, was held. Deputy City Attorney Leslie Cohen said.

In a battery report filed Oct. 21, Hochman contended Cosell slapped him four or five times after he boarded a plane at Los Angeles International Airport following the fifth game of the World Series.

Cosell was represented at the hearing by attorneys Frank Rothman and Louis Miller. Hochman was accompanied by his attorney Jerald Levy.

Nanette Fabray

Actress Nanette Fabray, who was knocked off her feet by a bewildered elephant, has been discharged from the hospital after three weeks, it was announced Friday.

A spokesman for Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in Los Angeles said that Miss Fabray left the hospital Wednesday after being treated for a concussion, bruises and a sprain in the lower neck and back.

She also reportedly suffered minor neurological side effects, but those were disappearing, a spokesman said. She was brought to the hospital in critical condition.

Miss Fabray was hit by an elephant's swaying trunk and knocked to the ground after the animal was frightened by a prankster, a spokesman said. She was filming a scene for the movie "Harper Valley PTA" at the time.

Top U.S. movies

"Gone With The Wind," the 1939 Civil War epic starring Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh, was chosen as the top movie of all time by the 3,500 members of the American Film Institute. The announcement was made at ceremonies Thursday night at the Kennedy Center in Washington, attended by President Carter and other notables. Highlights will be televised by CBS Monday night.

Other movies voted as the top 10 attractions in American film history included: "The African Queen" (1952), "Casablanca," (1942), "Citizen Kane" (1941), "The Grapes of Wrath" (1940), "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" (1975), "Singin' in the Rain" (1952), "Star Wars" (1977), "2001: A Space Odyssey" (1968) and "The Wizard of Oz" (1939).

Irish 'palace'

Princess Grace of Monaco has been granted a permit to build a vacation retreat on the original Irish homestead of her grandfather, John Bernard Kelly, County Mayo officials said Friday.

Princess Grace bought the 35-acre property near Newport, County Mayo, in the Irish Republic two years ago for 7,800 pounds (then worth $15,760).

Plans for the 2,000-square-foot home were approved Thursday by the county council, the county manager, Michael O'Malley, reported.

"The princess is at liberty now to commence construction work at any time," he said.

The site is in the seaboard region of the far west of Ireland and the two-bedroom home will command a fine view of Leg of Mutton Lake.

Bomb conviction

Former Ku Klux Klansman Robert Edward Chambliss, 73, was convicted in Birmingham, Ala., Friday of first-degree murder and sentenced to life in prison for the death of one of four girls killed in a church bombing 14 years ago that embittered the civil rights movement of the time.

State Attorney General Bill Baxley, who prosecuted the case, told reporters after the verdict that Chambliss was the ringleader of a group involved in the bombing, and more indictments are likely now.

Chambliss showed no emotion when the verdict was read or when sentence was handed down.

"What a shame to put that whole thing on a 73-year-old man," said defense attorney Art Hanes. "I hope the verdict was reached for the right reasons. People wanted to believe there was a new case. They wanted and hoped it would be solved."

The bombing took place on a Sunday morning, Sept. 15, 1963, after several months in which the Sixteenth Street Baptist Church had been used by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

Pryor feels fine

Actor-comic Richard Pryor, hospitalized last week for what news reports called a heart attack, said Friday he feels fine now and denied he had suffered a heart attack.

"No, it wasn't that," the 35-year-old star said from Big Bear, where he said he and his wife, Debbie, have been on vacation the last two days.

Pryor became ill last week while visiting relatives in his hometown of Peoria, Ill. He was taken to a coronary care unit. At his request, hospital officials refused to disclose the nature of his illness. His grandmother later was quoted as saying he'd suffered a heart attack.

Pryor said Friday the report was in error. "I had chest pains and I went to the hospital," he said. "They decided that I was tired and should rest a while. And they took some tests on me, involving my kidney functions."

He said he was taken to the hospital's coronary unit because he had a medical history of a heart murmur, but that tests showed he suffered from exhaustion.

Double tax-cut plan

Combined News Services

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Ray Marshall said Friday that at least two federal tax cuts of about $20 billion each will be needed by 1983 if the Carter administration is to reduce unemployment to the 4 percent goal outlined in the Humphrey-Hawkins full-employment bill.

The tax cuts could bring down the jobless rate from its current 7 percent level to about 4.8 percent by 1983, Marshall said. The secretary said an additional one million federally funded jobs, including public service and public works jobs and employment training programs, would reduce unemployment the remaining 0.8 percent to meet the 4 percent target.

President Carter, who endorsed a compromise form of the Humphrey-Hawkins last Monday, said the bill's unemployment goal is "an ambitious objective and one that may be difficult to achieve." But Marshall told a news conference he believes the bill "has a goal that is attainable."

Carter has said he will decide whether to propose a tax cut when year-end economic conditions are known.

Air strike averted

WASHINGTON — United Airlines, the nation's largest air carrier, reached a tentative contract agreement with its flight attendants Friday night, according to Ken Crowley, a union spokesman. No details of the proposed contract were given. The settlement averts a threatened strike during the Thanksgiving holiday which could have shut down the airline and disrupted the travel plans of thousands.

Bus walkout looms

PHOENIX — The Amalgamated Transit Union members voted by an 88 percent margin to authorize a strike against Greyhound, threatening to tie up Thanksgiving holiday travel. Officials said the union would hold off calling a strike until after a meeting scheduled today with Greyhound negotiators and a federal mediator.

Rome plane crash

ROME — An Ethiopian Airlines cargo plane exploded on takeoff from Rome's Fiumicino Airport today and crashed in flames into a wooded area bordering the airport, police said. According to first reports from the airport and police, there were five persons on board. There was no immediate word of survivors.

U.S. crop sales

WASHINGTON — China has bought 75,000 metric tons of U.S. soybeans as part of an old order which stipulated that the soybeans could come from sources other than the United States, the Agriculture Department said Friday.

Also Friday, the Agriculture Department said the Soviet Union has ordered an additional 250,000 metric tons of U.S. wheat.

AMC shows profit

DETROIT — American Motors Corp., plagued by slumping car sales which put the company in the red ink during 1975 and 1976, Friday posted an operating profit of $3.1 million for its 1977 fiscal year operations.

With a tax credit of $5.2 million, the No. 3 automaker showed net earnings of $8.3 million (27 cents a share) for its most recent fiscal year, which ended Sept. 30.

The company's return to black ink followed losses of $46.3 million ($1.56 a share) in 1976 and $27.5 million (92 cents a share) in 1975.

The turnaround for fiscal 1977 had been anticipated on the basis of earlier predictions from Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. and President Gerald C. Meyers. "It's not a very big number," Chapin told a news conference in a reference to the 1977 earnings, "but it represents a substantial change in the position of this company."

Rich boy kidnapped

BURLINGAME — Two masked men in a stolen van kidnapped the 11-year-old son of a socially prominent businessman Friday as the youngster walked to school, police said.

Nels Legallet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jok Legallet, was abducted less than two blocks from his home about 15 miles south of San Francisco. His father is the head of a tanning firm and a wool company in San Francisco.

Late Friday night, police were still maintaining a tight-lipped silence about the progress of the investigation. They said they knew of no communication received from the kidnappers.

The family was in seclusion at their home in an upper-income neighborhood. Friends said the family is widely known in San Francisco Peninsula social circles.

Lens implant

I've read about lens implants and would like to find a doctor who performs this procedure. I will be facing a cataract operation in the future and want to know more about such implants. L.N., Pico Rivera.

Intraocular (inside-the-eye) artificial lenses have been used since 1949, and the implant method usually is the preferred way to restore vision for cataract victims, but not all patients are suited for this procedure.

A cataract causes a person's natural eye lens, which is located behind the cornea and iris, to become cloudy and it can't properly focus incoming light. The lens must then be surgically removed and the patient is given thick eyeglasses or contact lenses to take the place of the natural lenses or he gets a lens implant. Patients who have had a lens implant usually must wear conventional bifocals.

In most cases, the lens implant is done at the time of the cataract surgery, but there are some types of lenses, such as the Choyce lens, which can be implanted in certain patients years after cataract surgery. The artificial lens remains in place permanently unless complications arise that would require its removal.

We have sent you a booklet on cataracts and the various treatments written by Dr. Mary Kay Michelis, a Long Beach eye surgeon who recently chaired a symposium on lens implants. She also supplied us with the name of a physician in your area who does implant operations and we've forwarded the information to you.

Tris test

Several months ago there was a newspaper story about a woman who had developed a test for determining if fabrics were treated with the flame retardant, Tris. Her method involved wrapping a piece of copper wire around a small piece of the cloth, then placing it in a flame. If the flame was green, it meant the fabric contained Tris. Was this method foolproof? Are there any other ways to test for Tris? L.H., Long Beach.

There is no foolproof way to test garments for Tris at home, said a spokeswoman for the federal Consumer Product Safety Commission in Bethesda, Md. She said it is true that Tris burns green, but so do many other chemicals. The commission has an elaborate textile flammability laboratory in which they use a number of chemicals and put fabrics through several processes in order to determine if Tris is present.

When Los Altos housewife Angela Horine and a chemist friend developed their copper wire and flame test, they acknowledged that the green flame indicated the presence of several possible chemicals, "the most likely of which" was Tris.

Tris was used in some children's sleepwear made from polyester, acetate or tri-acetate. Other products containing Tris include dry cleaning solvents, polyester thread, some Christmas ornaments, upholstery and tent fabrics. Tris was banned by the CPSC in April after it was discovered to be a potent carcinogen in rats and mice and it was determined that Tris rubbed off clothing can be readily absorbed into the skin.

No bridge burners

I have noticed at the entrance to the Vincent Thomas Bridge in San Pedro a sign which says "Explosives, corrosives prohibited without a permit." What is the purpose of this prohibition? R.L.H., Artesia.

Explosives and corrosives are prohibited from all state bridges, unless the carrier has a permit showing he has complied with state safety regulations, said a spokesman for the toll bridge administration division of the California Department of Transportation. He said the restrictions are intended to prevent accidents involving dangerous substances such as liquid solvents, dynamite or highly flammable materials being spilled which could virtually destroy the bridge.

Escrow training

I'm interested in becoming an escrow officer and would like to know what the requirements are for this type of job. J.L., Bellflower.

There are no state requirements for escrow officers, but the owner or the manager of an escrow company must have at least five years experience as an escrow officer or four years job experience if he has completed at least three escrow courses in college, said a spokesman for the California Department of Corporations, which regulates escrow firms.

One bank escrow officer told Action Line that most people get into the field by first getting a job as a secretary in an escrow office and learning the business on the job. But most community colleges, such as Cerritos and Long Beach City College, also offer beginning and advanced escrow courses, and a person with just college experience could be hired by a firm as an escrow officer.

The California Escrow Association, a private trade organization, certifies escrow officers who have sufficient experience, and such certification is helpful in landing choice jobs in the field, the bank escrow officer said.

You also can get some information on the basics of California escrow procedure in Sidney Reeve's "The Escrow Handbook," which is available in some libraries.

Sun Belt told to fight 'frost belt' for funds

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Long Beach/West Orange County, wants the Sun Belt to fight the "frost belt."

He told a Democratic organization in Tucson, Ariz., Friday that billions of federal dollars are at stake and that he plans to organize a coalition of House members from the South and West to battle the industrial East and Midwest for the money.

Hannaford noted that congressmen from the Northeast and Midwest are working together in an effort to get more federal money for their regions.

One victory already achieved by the frost-belt coalition was to allocate a higher proportion of Housing and Urban Development money to cities with older housing.

"I maintain that these measures have been manipulated to the advantage of the frost belt by the frost belt," said Hannaford, whose remarks were released here.

Son led police to elaborate greenhouse

L.B. doctor, wife convicted of growing pot

By Al Murrell Staff Writer

A Long Beach doctor and his wife were each convicted of three drug-related charges Friday in a case that started when the woman's 11-year-old son led police to marijuana growing in a sophisticated greenhouse capable of producing up to 100 pounds a year.

Dr. Chynel F. Henning, 33, and his wife, Karen, 32, of 3440 Caneyhill Ave., were found guilty by Long Beach Superior Court Judge Ellsworth Beam at the end of a two-day trial.

The Hennings were convicted of one count each of possessing marijuana for sale, cultivating marijuana and possessing hashish oil.

According to Deputy District Attorney Robert Samoian, evidence and testimony presented during the trial showed that narcotics officers found a 6-foot-by-18-foot greenhouse in the garage at the Hennings' home Jan. 22.

Mrs. Henning's son, Gibrahn Verdult, led the officers to the garage after he found what he thought was marijuana growing in the greenhouse while visiting his mother.

The boy, who lives in Irvine with his father, William Verdult, had attended a demonstration by Irvine police at his school shortly before finding the plants.

Long Beach police narcotics investigator James Scholtz described the greenhouse in testimony as "the most sophisticated cultivation setup I have ever seen" in his seven years on the police force.

Scholtz estimated that the greenhouse was capable of producing 100 pounds of marijuana per year, with a "street value" of between $10,000 and $20,000.

According to the testimony, the four narcotics officers who went to the Hennings' home seized nearly 100, 4-foot tall plants and numerous smaller plants.

The officers also seized some 10 pounds of cured marijuana and a small amount of hashish oil.

Officer Gary Halliday testified the officers also found 30 to 40 packages of plastic bags in the kitchen, but did not bring them in because "we had so much other evidence they were not needed."

Dr. Henning, who was a pathologist at the Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital at the time of his arrest, testified that he was growing about 20 different types of marijuana as part of an experiment to treat his wife's asthma. He testified he was given the various types of seeds by friends.

He also said that the police arrested him and took the plants before the experiment was completed and that he destroyed his notes because they were no longer of any use.

Judge Beam allowed the Hennings to remain free on $5,000 bail each pending their probation and sentencing hearing on Dec. 20.

Instant scanner in sky aids Southland firefighters

By Michael Coakley
Chicago Tribune Service

The glaring yellow and black signs — "Danger, No Smoking, Fire Zone" — have become a fixture in the sleepy hillside towns of Southern California that have been come accustomed to the threat of fiery devastation.

This year the danger is more acute than ever. With the entire West Coast suffering through its second year of severe drought, the fire season started in June instead of September, the usual time.

Already hundreds of thousands of acres of prime forest land have been devastated.

This is the time the firefighters start trilling about a coastal phenomenon called the Santa Ana winds. Powerful and destructive, they can arise any time during the year, but particularly during the fall, when the brush areas are driest.

This season, however, the experts believe they have been in a better position to fight the wind-swept blazes than at any time in the past.

Those detectors, which sense relative heat energy, have been used in making fire maps for several years. However, until recently, it was necessary for the crews to wait for the plane to land after surveying the fire area and then wait several more hours for the material to be produced.

This meant that there was a costly delay from the time the map was made to the time when it was presented to the "fire boss," the man making the decisions on where to send his men to battle a blaze, which might be spreading at the rate of a hundred acres an hour.

Now an airborne telemetry system has entered service, and fire officials receive an infra-red map of the fire within minutes, allowing them to make decisions based on which way the fire is moving at that precise time.

"The use of the IRs (infra-reds) made an enormous difference for us," says Paul Barker, deputy supervisor of California's gigantic Los Padres National Forest, which experienced two major fires earlier in the summer. "Getting the information quicker means that you can at least keep up with the fire."

Another innovation used successfully at Los Padres was "night vision goggles" which enable a helicopter crew to spray water on a blaze during the night, when cooler temperatures make the watering more successful.

The goggles, which provide an intensive light beam directed at a small area, were developed for use during the Vietnam War.

In all, 175,000 out of 1.9 million acres were destroyed during the two Los Padres fires. However, officials argue that the destruction would have been much greater had it not been for the new firefighting tools.

KKK off base, say Marines; That's false, says Klan

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — Just an isolated incident, insists the Marine Corps.

Not so, say the Ku Klux Klan and those who despise the white-supremacy clique.

The young leathernecks at the nation's biggest Marine base, interviewed at random, declined to take sides or give opinions in the smoldering dispute over racism in uniform.

A year ago, 14 black Marines stormed command-like into a barracks room where they say they thought Klansmen were plotting harm to them.

It was the wrong room. In a nearby room, black-hate propaganda and weapons were found later, along with a list of 17 members of an all-white Klan den allowed to operate on base.

But six of the seven white Marines surprised while drinking beer that Saturday night, Nov. 13, were stabbed and beaten severely enough to require hospitalization.

The Marine Corps ordered the blacks all court-martialed, convicted the majority and fined them, imprisoned them at hard labor and discharged them. A single defendant was acquitted among 13 who faced trial in the following 12 months, and he returned voluntarily to civilian life.

A dozen of the identified Klansmen, who later showed weapons and racist leaflets to reporters, were discharged or transferred.

Today, a Camp Pendleton spokesman said, "If any racial group exists, we don't know about it. They need a charter issued by the commanding general to meet, and there are no charters for the Ku Klux Klan."

"That's false," an off-base Klan leader said last week. "They found 17 names on that list when they busted into the boys' wall lockers, and there are other dens at Pendleton and the Navy bases."

The Klan is watching the outcome of a federal suit filed in San Diego by Michael Pancer, an attorney acting with support of the San Diego chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union. No date has been set for a hearing on a new government motion to dismiss the suit which would allow the Klan to organize and meet openly on military bases.

In an interview, Pancer said the U.S. Constitution allows Klansmen as well as all Americans "freedom of speech and freedom of association — and the right to be in the service, organize as Ku Klux Klan members and have meetings."

"They're a very small organization and I hope we can keep them that way," Pancer said.

The San Diego Urban League agrees the Klan is relatively small, but dangerous. It has accused the Marine Corps and the Navy of allowing U.S. servicemen to belong to subversive organizations that threaten ethnic minorities.

A pair of off-base crosses were set up outside the barracks of one of the 14 accused blacks while he was on trial in September. The Marine spokesman blamed "a couple of drunks."

In one trial, John Murcko, among a dozen civilian attorneys who formed the "Pendleton Legal Defense Fund," helped the black, without charge, accused the Marine Corps of winking at the Klan.

Forest fire can often do good

By Jon Van
Chicago Tribune Service

Smokey the Bear has not become a pyromaniac, but his attitude toward forest fires has mellowed considerably over the years.

The symbol of protecting America's woodlands from fiery destruction is now seen in forestry publications saying simply: "Please continue to be careful with fire." He has dropped his unequivocal opposition to forest fires as forestry researchers have accepted the view that some forest fires are beneficial.

The Forest Service estimates that more than 14 million acres of the nation's timberland have been destroyed by wildfires in the last five years — 8.1 million acres in 1976 alone. That is seen as a shocking waste but, curiously, a waste that smaller fires might have produced.

"WHEN YOU PUT OUT small fires in a forest for years and years, you allow undergrowth to pile up, and you eventually are faced with a tinderbox that produces a much more destructive fire than you'd have otherwise," said John McComb of the Sierra Club, a conservation lobby in Washington.

"The National Park Service has been allowing some small fires to burn themselves out, without fighting them. You can walk through those forests afterwards and not even notice any damage."

Some trees actually thrive with periodic fires. Adult ponderosa pines, Douglas fir and Western larch trees have thick bark to insulate the inner living tissues from the damage of a natural fire.

Seeds from their cones sprout best in conditions created by fire with the soil free from litter and enriched by nutrients from the ashes.

Fires that occur in forests long past their natural ignition point can burn so hot as to overheat soils and damage root systems. They may also destroy the crowns of tall trees as well as feeding on dead needles and branches on the forest floor.

"I THINK MOST progressive people in the forestry service and in the industry are agreed that some natural fires are good," says McComb. "The only people who disagree with this are probably some of the older people who cannot accept any kind of forest fire."

"They've spent so many years fighting the fires, learning to hate them as an enemy, they just can't think any other way."

As might be expected, naturally occurring forest fires are more common in the least settled parts of the United States, in forests within the Pacific Coast states, more than one forest fire in four is ignited by lightning.

In Rocky Mountain states, forest fires are caused by lightning about two times out of five. In Midwestern states, however, the leading cause of forest fires is indirectly manmade. One-third of Midwestern forest fires start with burning debris.

In the Northeastern states, estimates are that children are the leading cause of forest fires, starting about one fire in four. In the South, nearly two out of five forest fires are believed to be purposely set.

Arrested as drunk Stroke victim dies in jail cell

Associated Press

British literary agent Clive Lionel Goodwin, who died of a stroke in the Beverly Hills Jail, was sober but feeling ill minutes before he was arrested for drunkenness, English playwright Trevor Griffiths said Friday in Los Angeles.

Goodwin was placed in the drunk tank at the jail Monday and was found dead in his cell Tuesday morning. He died of a stroke, the coroner said.

"The man was sober," Griffiths said, recalling his 45-minute visit with Goodwin at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel Monday afternoon. "He just was not drunk."

Griffiths, the author of the play "Comedians," said he and Goodwin were old friends who were both visiting the United States on business. They got together for a chat and a cup of tea Monday afternoon, Griffiths said.

"WE TALKED ABOUT work, business and about our children and what we were thinking about buying them as presents from abroad. Then he suddenly remarked that he had a bad headache," Griffiths recalled. "He said, 'This is the worst headache I've ever had in my life.'"

Goodwin then left to go back to his own hotel, and minutes later was arrested in the lobby of the Beverly Wilshire.

Before meeting Griffiths, Goodwin had had lunch with Gordon Davidson and Ed Parone, the director and assistant director of the Mark Taper Forum. Parone called the cab that took Goodwin to the Beverly Wilshire to see Griffiths.

"I know the man was not drinking," Parone said. "He had one glass of wine before his lunch. That's it."

Parone said Goodwin "seemed fine" at lunch. "It seems monstrous to put somebody in jail for being sick. He was obviously a respectable man."

Beverly Hills Police Chief Michael Pederson said the officers who arrested Goodwin decided he was drunk because of "a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. He was examined by paramedics and they formed the same conclusion as the officers."

PEDERSON SAID Goodwin was unconscious the entire time he was jailed. "He never spoke with anybody," the chief said.

The coroner's office is making toxicological tests to determine whether Goodwin was or was not intoxicated. Hal Lieberman, an associate of actor Warren Beatty, happened to be leaving a meeting with Beatty when he saw Goodwin's arrest. The police laid Goodwin on the floor and handcuffed his hands behind his back, Lieberman said.

"The police literally dragged the body to the car," Lieberman added. "There was no movement in the body. The legs were dragging. The head was falling."

Lieberman said he figured the handcuffed man was either dead or in need of medical attention and he said he wondered "Why is there no ambulance waiting?"

Model study on impact of closing nuclear plant asked

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Federal officials should develop a model study on how to permanently shut down the Humboldt Bay nuclear plant, a state energy official said Friday.

Gene Varanini, a member of the state Energy Commission, said the U.S. Department of Energy could use the study's findings to "reduce uncertainties involved in that process" in the future.

The plant has been closed for more than a year for maintenance, and the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission staff recently said it could not prove the plant could withstand a strong earthquake. Ed Singland, a spokesman for the Pacific Gas & Electric Co., which operates the plant, said Varanini's study suggestion was "premature."

P.G.E. has an application pending before the NRC to reopen the nuclear unit near Eureka.

Varanini said he was concerned about the matter because the process of closing down the plant could cost between $10 million and $80 million. He questioned what impact a closing would have on rate-payers supporting Pacific Gas & Electric.

On shooting policy Police-gun hearing set

By Noel Swan
From Our L.A. Bureau

Supervisor Ed Edelman has scheduled two days of hearings in early December to deal with controversial shootings by law enforcement agencies in Los Angeles County.

In a letter to numerous persons invited to speak at the hearings, Edelman stressed he is not interested in dealing with the shooting policies of law enforcement agencies nor with any specific shooting cases. "I will not accept testimony on these matters," Edelman said.

A series of police shootings in the last three months — particularly the killing of an unarmed naked man by a Los Angeles police officer — has focused public attention on the issue.

EDELMAN SAID HIS GOAL is to solicit information and opinions as to what the best mechanism might be to resolve problems surrounding controversial incidents.

"Clearly that mechanism ought to be one which protects the legal rights of involved officers and the legitimate interests of law enforcement agencies and governments while at the same time providing to the public its right to know the facts," Edelman said.

He said several procedures to deal with police shootings now exist — grand jury probes, district attorney investigations, coroner inquests and inquiries by police departments and bodies governing law-enforcement agencies.

Said Edelman, "In my view, each of these procedures has its problems, and I hope that through the hearings we can devise a suitable mechanism to deal with the issue."

Among those invited to speak are the 50 chiefs of police in Los Angeles County, Sheriff Peter Pitchess, District Attorney John Van de Kamp, Long Beach City Attorney Leonard Putnam, Coroner Thomas Noguchi, Los Angeles City Attorney Burt Pines, and County Counsel John Larson.

In addition, the list covers university professors, elected officials, bar association representatives, community leaders and speakers from other legal and law-enforcement groups.

Edelman said the initial two hearings are scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 7, and Friday, Dec. 9, in the Board of Supervisors' Hearing Room in the Hall of Administration.

Police believe shop owner victim of 'contract killing'

Signal Hill police reported no new leads Friday night in what they think was the contract killing Thursday of a 38-year-old businessman in his warehouse at 2502 Palm Drive.

Officers advanced the murder-for-hire theory Friday in the absence of any other apparent motive in the shooting death of Robert F. Mrazek.

The Seal Beach man was found lying next to a workbench at 2:15 p.m. after an employee outside heard a shot and saw a tall, swarthy young man run from the building.

Homicide Detective Sgt. Robert Deeley said Mrazek rented the small building in the warehouse complex about six months ago. He was to have opened a carpet business in it Friday.

"Mrazek had $5,500 untouched in his pocket, and nothing else was taken," Deeley said. "There was no argument."

"The young employee who was sweeping outside said the killer walked in after asking for Mrazek, and he heard the start of a calm conversation about some carpeting for a van. Then there was the shot. The whole thing didn't take 20 seconds."

Dan and Barbara Wethern, close friends of Mrazek, said they knew of no enemies he might have made.

Wethern said he had worked with Mrazek for 10 years in a Cerritos auto wrecking business and for several years in the operation of an auto body shop. The Wetherns added that Mrazek's wife, Helen, owns a 'ball bond business in Los Angeles.

Mrazek's partner, Joe Vincent, contacted by police Thursday night, told investigators he knew of no reason why anyone would want to kill Mrazek. He said he was scheduled

Gas company asks pipeline shift to oil

Associated Press

The Southern California Gas Co. in Los Angeles Friday asked the state's Public Utilities Commission for permission to turn over one of its five natural gas lines to Standard Oil of Ohio for shipping crude oil to the Gulf Coast and Midwest.

Such a move has been questioned in the past by state officials, who feared that conversion of the gas line to crude oil would curtail shipment of cleaner burning natural gas into the state.

But Harvey Proctor, chairman of the gas company, said, "Abandonment of one pipeline will not cut down on our future gas supplies. We can still handle all potential future supplies from Mexico, Algeria, coal gasification and deregulation."

Proctor said the company's five pipelines have a capacity of 2.5 billion cubic feet a day, but less than 2 billion cubic feet daily is being received because of declining supplies from out-of-state sources.

He said the lines' excess capacity would increase to more than 1 billion cubic feet a day by next year.

Electricity lost for hour to 200 residents in La Mirada

A power outage from a short circuit in 12,000-volt transmission lines cut off electrical service to 200 Edison Co. customers in La Mirada Friday night.

The outage may have been caused by someone throwing magnetic tape across the transmission lines, Edison spokesman Fred Mickelson said.

The 7:30 p.m. short circuit resulted in burned power lines on several utility poles and sparked a minor fire at a garage. No injuries were reported from three high-voltage lines downed in the 13800 block of Dilworth Avenue.

Mickelson said service was restored at 8:43 p.m. to the affected area, which was bounded by Imperial Highway on the north, Rosecrans Avenue on the south, Marquardt Avenue on the west and La Mirada Boulevard on the east.

Book on Viet debacle Agent broke trust, says CIA

By Seymour M. Hersh
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — The CIA Friday accused Frank Snepp, a former agent, of violating his security oath and his word by publishing an extensive analysis of the agency's role in South Vietnam without obtaining prior approval.

The agency said CIA Director Adm. Stansfield M. Turner met last May 17 with Snepp to discuss Snepp's book, which was then in progress. After Snepp promised to abide by his security oath and submit a copy of his finished work to the CIA for clearance, Turner provided him with some unclassified materials.

Compounding the anger of some CIA officials Friday was the fact that the government is apparently powerless to take any immediate sanctions against the Snepp book, a 580-page work that was edited and printed amid great secrecy by Random House. An article about the book was published Friday in The New York Times and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

The CIA said Turner did not learn of the publication of Snepp's work "until he read descriptions of the book in the newspapers."

LAWYERS and others familiar with the agency's secrecy oath said Friday that Snepp, by publishing his work without CIA clearance, was not guilty of a crime. He would be guilty, they said, only if he turned classified information over to a foreign intelligence source, which would be a violation of the nation's espionage laws.

One possible sanction available to the CIA Friday would have been to seek an immediate halt to the publication of the work, but a high-level CIA official acknowledged that the agency had determined that more than 15,000 copies of the Snepp book were en route to bookstores across the nation.

Snepp's book, titled "Decent Interval," deals with a series of intelligence mistakes and misjudgments on the part of high officials of the Ford administration which resulted in poor planning for the final evacuation of Americans and Vietnamese allies from Saigon in the final days of the Vietnam War in April, 1975.

SNEPP, WHO SERVED at the time as the CIA principal analyst of North Vietnamese affairs at the U.S. Embassy in Saigon, specifically cited what he called the CIA's "institutional disgrace" that resulted in the abandonment of thousands of South Vietnamese collaborators and intelligence operatives.

Later Friday, the Justice Department confirmed that Griffin B. Bell, the attorney general, had discussed the Snepp book with Turner.

A department spokesman said the matter had been referred to the Civil Division for further study. No immediate action against Snepp or the distribution of the book was being planned, a spokesman said.

Random House officials acknowledged that Snepp had deliberately misled Turner during their meeting in May.

One CIA official who was present at the Snepp-Turner meeting in May told a reporter that Snepp "promised orally, without any qualification or hesitation, that he would provide us with a copy of the book."

"It's one thing to go ahead and take your chances," he added heatedly, "but it's another thing to deliberately mislead."

Snepp could not be reached for comment Friday.

AT A SERIES of meetings at the CIA Friday, high officials apparently decided not to permit their personnel to respond to specific charges of wrongdoing in the Snepp book.

William E. Colby, who was director of the CIA at the time of the fall of Saigon, told a reporter late Wednesday that he had discussed Snepp's complaints in mid-1975 and found them unsubstantiated.

"The question of when the evacuation should have been ordered has been hashed over and over," Colby, now in private law practice, said. "The fact is that 130,000 Vietnamese and all the Americans who wanted to, got out."

Graham A. Martin, the last U.S. ambassador to Saigon, who also was singled out for criticism by Snepp, defended his judgments in a telephone interview Friday.

SPEAKING from Florence, Italy, where the retired diplomat said he was "picking some olives," Martin similarly noted that more than 100,000 Vietnamese had escaped Saigon and added: "I think that fact is answer enough."

"On the whole," he added, "I think that the judgments I made at the time proved to be right."

Snepp, in his detailed account, accused Martin and others, including then-Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, of ignoring hard intelligence of North Vietnamese intentions in a futile last-ditch effort to negotiate a coalition government in South Vietnam.

Snepp also said that the CIA in effect covered up its evacuation failures later in 1975, a fact that forced him to resign and begin writing his book.

FBI appointee still recuperating

WASHINGTON (AP) — Judge Frank M. Johnson, the nominee for FBI director, "still plans to be here in January" despite persistent medical problems, Attorney General Griffin Bell said Friday.

Johnson, a federal district judge in Montgomery, Ala., was nominated by President Carter to take charge of the FBI last September. But Senate confirmation hearings were delayed after Johnson underwent surgery for an aneurysm and then developed a hernia during his operation.

BELL SAID he talked with Johnson Thursday and Johnson assured him that he expects to be able to testify at a hearing in January.

"The problem has not entirely receded. I don't expect any delay, but I'll know more after he goes to the doctor today," Bell said. "He still has his enthusiasm."

Bell discussed the situation in response to a question from a Justice Department employee. The attorney general spent about an hour answering dozens of questions from some 800 employees in the department's Great Hall.

This was the second time Bell invited the employees to a question and answer session.

On another subject, he said he expects to announce within a few days his plans for reorganizing the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

But he said he has no plans for choosing a permanent head of the agency. The position as LEAA administrator, a presidential appointment, has been vacant since the Carter administration took office 10 months ago. James Gregg has been acting administrator.

"There's no point in getting a head of an agency when it might be an entirely different type of agency and we might need a different type of person," Bell said.

SADAT'S VISIT TO ISRAEL

Former President Gerald R. Ford praised Sadat and said his mission was "a risk or gamble that is needed to make headway and continue momentum for peace in the Middle East." Ford spoke to reporters in New Orleans, where he has been lecturing at Dillard University.

The Israeli ambassador to Washington, Simcha Dinitz, emerged from a White House meeting and said he thought Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin will discuss visiting Cairo when he meets with Sadat.

The Egyptian advance party — 60 officials, security experts and journalists led by Hassan Kemal, director of Sadat's office — arrived at Ben-Gurion Airport to ecstatic applause and shouts from airport workers and Israelis lining the 30-mile route to Jerusalem.

"We left Egypt with a prayer in our heart and faith in Allah, and we shall have faith because our intentions are pure and we do want peace," Kemal said in Arabic at the airport.

TOURING THE places Sadat will visit on his 36-hour stay, the Egyptians found a city bustling with preparation.

They were greeted at every stop by cheering Israelis, some waving copies of the day's Maariv newspaper with bold red headlines in Arabic and Hebrew reading "Welcome President Sadat."

Thousands of Egyptian flags fluttered along streets and from the King David Hotel, where Sadat will stay. Busloads of troops and police in full battledress drove through the city, and hundreds of foreign correspondents sought credentials to cover the event.

Completing his tour, Kamal declared: "The preparations are excellent, our meetings have been fruitful and purposeful."

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A rocket exploded Friday near the Egyptian Embassy, killing an embassy guard. The rocket apparently was fired to protest Egyptian President Sadat's visit to Israel.

Sadat appeared happy and at ease on the eve of his historic voyage. As he prayed at Ismailia, the congregation chanted: "God go with you."

In Washington, Carter said his telephone call to Sadat found the Egyptian leader "excited, enthusiastic and confident" about the upcoming visit.

The president told Sadat he hoped the visit would lead to a reconvening of the Geneva Mideast peace conference and, referring to the global television coverage expected, added: "The eyes of the world are on you."

Sadat also received a telephone call from former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and a statement of support from British Foreign Secretary David Owen.

As the Egyptian security men scouted Sadat's itinerary, Israeli officials announced two additions to his schedule: a visit to the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, traditional site of Christ's burial, and a tour of Yad Vashem monument to Jewish victims of Nazism, both on Sunday.

THE LATEST and still tentative schedule called for Begin and Israeli President Ephraim Katzir to greet Sadat tonight at Ben-Gurion Airport. On Sunday morning, Sadat is to pray at the Al Aqsa Mosque in East Jerusalem. After visits to the church and memorial, he is to address the 120-member Israeli parliament and listen to Begin's reply. The address was set for 4 p.m. (6 a.m. PST).

Times were set aside for private talks with Begin, but it was still uncertain whether the two leaders would hold such discussions.

Observers agreed that the significance of the visit was not in what Sadat would say, but in where he said it.

No Arab leader has agreed to visit Israel openly in all 29 years of its history, and the Sadat mission was seen as a bold gamble to break the psychological barriers barring new initiatives toward an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Israel, Egypt: The big issues

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Egyptian President Sadat's visit to Israel has focused attention on the issues that have blocked an Arab-Israeli peace agreement. Following is a brief summary of the problems.

NATURE OF PEACE

Israel has wanted in an overall accord more than just an end to the state of war, but a "real peace," meaning normal diplomatic and trade relations — in essence, acceptance by the Arabs of Israel's right to exist as a Middle Eastern neighbor.

By going to Israel, Sadat seems to be acknowledging that right, something Egypt has already said it would do in a settlement. President Carter, who endorses the Israeli view of peace, said that Egypt, Syria and Jordan are all ready to sign actual peace treaties with Israel. But it is doubtful that

Syria would agree to any diplomatic or trade relations

TERRITORIES

In the June 1967 six-day war, Israel seized the Sinai from Egypt, the Golan Heights from Syria, and the West Bank of the Jordan and Old Jerusalem from Jordan.

Since then, the Arabs have made the return of all the territories a principal peace demand. The Israeli government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin has indicated a willingness to return almost all the Sinai to Egypt as part of an overall settlement, but only some parts of the Golan Heights to Syria, and has refused so far to put the West Bank again under foreign control.

On this issue, the U.S. view is closer to the Arabs than the Israelis, arguing that Israel should agree to go back to the 1967 borders with minor modifications

PALESTINIANS

Closely related to territorial questions, the problem of the Palestinians has also been a major stumbling block. The Arab world has been seeking, as part of an accord, that the Palestinians, under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization, be permitted to have a state, either independent or eventually linked to Jordan, on the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Some groups within the PLO would also like the right to seek part of pre-1967 Israel for their homeland. The Israelis, who will have nothing to do with the PLO on the ground that group is determined to seek its destruction as a state, has rejected the idea of a Palestinian state. The Americans have said the Palestinians should have a homeland, preferably linked to Jordan back, held up high, so that it seemed painful," Hook recalled.

"He was being swung from one side of the hall to the other. His head hit the walls five or six times, and he appeared in a poor state of mind by the time he reached the outside of his cell."

Rush said, "I was awakened by a loud bump on my door. Then I heard Lucas cry, 'Why doesn't someone make them quit?' Lucas was crying."

Then, both witnesses declared, Lucas was thrust into his cell and hit an object hard, making a loud "hollow" sound.

Lucas seemed to have difficulty breathing and was heard hacking, Hook and Rush said.

Rush also said he saw two officers standing in the hallway. Another four officers — who reached Lucas' cell from the other end of the hallway — had followed Lucas into his cell, but joined the two in the hallway shortly after the loud thud, he noted.

About 90 minutes later, Hook said, he called for a guard to report a "foul smell" coming from Lucas' cell.

Lucas was dead, the witnesses said, and the body was removed after an examination of the cell.

Rush said in his statement that shortly afterward he was taken from his cell and beaten by seven officers.

"Two officers came and snatched me out of my cell," he asserted. "At the end of the hallway, there were five more officers. We went to a room, where I was pushed against the wall and hit in the face about six times with fists."

And, after a tooth filling was knocked out, Rush said an officer told him:

"You know nothing can be proved, because we work on the inside and operate the files."

Out of desperation, Rush said he told the officers, "How can I tell anything if I didn't see anything?"

"Just make sure you didn't see anything," Rush quoted an officer's warning.

Rush said he was hit once again and fell to the floor, dazed by the blow.

"I was ordered up, but I didn't move," he recalled. "So I was dragged to my cell."

At a meeting Thursday of the Human Relations Commission, the Hook and Rush statements were read aloud by Commissioner Ramon Cruz, the author of a recently drafted proposal — still needing approval from the City Council — to establish a special citizen panel to review reports of police misconduct.

Lucas is one of six men found dead in the Long Beach jail since July 1976 — and one of three since Sept. 30.

MENTAL HOSPITALS

After formally finishing two years of work on the mental health system, the commissioners listed possible targets for their next examination: Coastal Commission, Energy Commission and the Fair Political Practices Commission.

The nine mental health hospitals run by the state Developmental Services Department are in Napa, Pomona, Costa Mesa, San Jose, Camarillo, Stockton, Patton, Sonoma and Porterville.

The first four on that list are the hospitals that have lost their skilled nursing-care licenses, according to the commission.

Two other mental hospitals, Norwalk and Atascadero, are overseen by the state Mental Health Department.

Foes of parley claim they represent average woman

HOUSTON (AP) — Opponents of the National Women's Conference charged Friday that they, and not the vast majority of delegates to the federally funded meeting, represent the views of the average American woman.

Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., held a hearing to air complaints against the Commission on the Observance of International Women's Year, the sponsoring organization.

The conference, which officially opens today, is financed with $5 million in federal funds. It will make recommendations to Congress and President Carter on how to provide equal rights for women and men.

ABOUT 80 percent of the conference's more than 2,000 delegates support ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment.

"I want to know how this group presumes to speak for American women," said Elizabeth A. Sadowski, a delegate from New Jersey who testified at Dornan's hearing.

Mrs. Sadowski, who described herself as a housewife and mother of three, said she is the only one of New Jersey's 45 delegates who does not support abortion, gay rights and ERA ratification.

"I am the diversity in the New Jersey delegation," she said.

Joan Gubbius, an Indiana legislator, said delegates who oppose abortion, ERA and other controversial ideas recognize that they are a minority here. She said anti-ERA forces are outnumbered about 5 to 1 because of "discriminatory tactics that were used in some states."

The anti-convention activities were sponsored by the Citizens Review Committee for IWY, a temporary group affiliated with Stop ERA, the Eagle Forum March for Life, the National Right to Life Committee and other anti-ERA groups.

Phyllis Schlafly, a syndicated columnist and prominent ERA opponent, said the IWY commission had waged "a campaign to exclude women who did not agree with them and promote their special interest goals."

She said, "We think these goals do not represent what the American people want" and added that at state meetings, where most delegates to the national conference were elected, "our women were treated with such hostility. . . . If you're not for ERA you don't belong here."

The conference sponsors have denied there was any attempt to rig the state meetings to pack the conference here with ERA supporters.

IN AGREEING to fund the state and national conferences, Congress required that delegates represent the racial, ethnic, economic and age makeup of America's female population.

The major activity being sponsored by the anti-convention coalition is what is being billed as a "pro-life, pro-family rally" today.

WOMEN'S MEETING

to get the ERA ratified by three more states.

Other groups representing more than 40 percent of the delegates gathered in what they called a Pro-plan Caucus to discuss ways to outwit ERA opponents who may try to block passage of pro-ERA proposals.

In addition to approval of ERA, the proposals call for federally funded abortions for poor women, more child care and health facilities, greater enforcement of anti-discrimination laws and civil rights for lesbians.

The ERA ratification movement is currently stalled just three states short of the 38 needed to amend the Constitution. Three states have voted to rescind their approvals, but the Justice Department has said a reconsideration probably is not legal.

Former Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., who was instrumental in getting the ERA through Congress in 1972, made an emotional appeal for the measure Friday.

"You've got only 15 months to become human. Why don't you do something?" she said, referring to the March 22, 1979, deadline on ratifying the ERA.

As the crowd here waited for the torch carriers to arrive Friday, a few men picketed with protest signs. One read: "Women's lip. Follow Jesus Christ and your husband and your pastor — repent."

At a pro-ERA rally Friday, presidents of five major women's organizations said emphasis now should be put on mounting economic boycotts against the 15 states that have not ratified the ERA and in working for the defeat of anti-ERA state legislators.

Agencies ignore open-meeting law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal regulatory agencies have been flagrantly ignoring a new law that requires most of their meetings be open to the public, according to figures released Friday by the Library of Congress.

At the request of Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., Library of Congress researchers surveyed 32 agencies to assess their performance from March through September of this year.

AMONG 1,003 meetings held by the agencies, 527 were completely or partially closed. For only 133 of those meetings did the agencies meet a requirement that specific reasons be publicly cited for holding a closed session.

Twenty of the regulatory agencies completely ignored the requirement for stating exemptions to the general rule that meetings be open.

Among the agencies covered by the new law are the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

In one case last April, according to a Chiles spokesman, the Federal Reserve Board held a secret meeting on how its office furnishings should be designed by citing an exemption permitting a closed meeting if sensitive information about the national economy is to be discussed.

Agencies may also close meetings for discussions about national security, employee personnel matters and trade secrets.

"You'd be surprised what gets discussed under the label of national security and personnel," said Chiles spokesman Jack Pridden.

CHILES has summoned officials of some agencies to testify on the closed meeting issue at a Nov. 29 meeting of a Senate governmental affairs subcommittee.

In many cases, agencies also are ignoring requirements for advance notice of their meetings and for keeping transcripts when they do hold justified closed meetings.

As a member of the Florida state Senate, Chiles authored one of the nation's first open meeting laws, also called sunshine laws. He ran for the U.S. Senate on an open government theme and was successful in urging passage of federal legislation modeled on the Florida law.

U.N. Assembly condemns apartheid 14 times

New York News Service

UNITED NATIONS — Fourteen separate resolutions condemning South Africa for its apartheid policy were introduced Friday in the General Assembly. They range from a call for an anti-apartheid year to a ban on cooperation in sports.

The Assembly is expected to vote on the resolutions Tuesday. While non-binding, the resolutions constitute demands for binding Security Council resolutions at a later date.

The United States is considering how to vote on at least four controversial resolutions: One calling for a total economic and trade embargo, one calling for assistance to armed struggle by liberation movements, one condemning Israel for allegedly "encouraging South Africa in its criminal policy of apartheid" and one de-

Officer finds sons suspects

TIVERTON, R.I. (AP) — Police Sgt. Clinton C. Bigelow, whose burglary investigation produced indictments against 13 people, said Friday it was hard to do his job when he realized two of the suspects were his own sons.

"I don't like it, to tell you the truth," said Bigelow, 53. "But what are you going to do? Justice is justice. When you find out your own sons are involved, who would like it?"

"But the only thing I ever think about is that this is my profession," he said. "And I will stay with it."

BIGELOW, an officer for 18 years in this quiet coastal town of about 12,000, was assigned to lead an investigation two months ago into a series of burglaries.

Last Tuesday, secret indictments were delivered in Newport County Superior Court to Judge Arthur Carrellas. Two of those named were Bigelow's sons — Robert, 27, and Kevin, 19.

Carrellas arraigned all but two of the 13 on charges of breaking and entering, a felony in Rhode Island. One of the two who failed to appear was Robert Bigelow.

Kevin Bigelow, who still lives at home, pleaded innocent and was released on personal recognizance.

Robert Bigelow, for whom a bench warrant has been issued, was charged along with Keith Dowty, 23, Portsmouth, with breaking into a Tiverton home and stealing $5,000 worth of antique guns.

Bigelow said he realized during the investigation that his sons might be involved in the burglaries. He said his wife has been under a doctor's care since that point.

Tiverton police Chief Robert F. Washburn, who said the alleged burglary ring netted about $30,000 worth of goods in the past 18 months, praised Bigelow for being a good officer.

"BIGELOW is a cop — a good one — and strictly a cop as far as I'm concerned," Washburn said. "In a small town, it can be hard for a local policeman who sometimes has to arrest people he's known his whole life. But if it falls that way, it falls that way."

JOINING HIS American wife in Washington Friday, Alexander Slepak tells future plans at interview. Mrs. Slepak, a UC economics student, met her husband in Moscow while she was employed by a U.S. Embassy staff member. —AP LASERPHOTO

Freed Soviet Jew will carry on fight in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — For Alexander Slepak, a Soviet Jew who rejoined his American wife here three days ago, life is filled with the sweet taste of freedom.

But his elation at Americans' smiling faces and the luxury of being able to buy almost anything in his pocketbook can afford is tempered by the knowledge that his parents and teen-age brother remain in Russia.

Slepak, who married 21-year-old Elaine Burrell Slepak of Santa Cruz almost six months ago in Moscow, arrived here with one suitcase and a big black dog named Mouse.

TUESDAY, his first full day in the United States, he spent hours walking the halls of Congress, asking more than a dozen congressmen and senators to write to high U.S. and Soviet officials on his family's behalf.

He also plans a tour to many major U.S. cities and trips to both Canada and Europe in hope of finding the right people to put pressure on Soviet officials to free his family.

"My duty is to help my father leave Russia," Slepak said in an interview. "If he goes, he will be followed by thousands of Jews. The movement will continue."

His father, Vladimir Slepak, is believed to be among the most senior of Moscow's Jews who have been denied permission to emigrate to Israel. Last fall, when he was jailed for demonstrating on behalf of Soviet Jews, the elder Slepak received a telegram from then-presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, expressing his personal interest.

APPARENTLY referring to an incident in which some Jewish protesters claimed they were kicked and punched by Soviet auxiliary policemen, Carter said he had read "with great concern" of the Jews' treatment.

Friday, sitting in a small, locked office of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry, which is sponsoring his mission, 26-year-old Alexander Slepak talked of his dreams.

"I want to live in Israel," he said. "After my father will be here, I want to go back to a normal life — to have my family, my studies. I want to study biology, specifically, the behavior and psychology of animals."

Slepak, a medium-sized man with brown curly hair and thick-framed glasses, looked very American in his new camel-colored sportcoat, navy vest, blue-striped shirt and tie and navy slacks. Only his thick-soled shoes of a rather nondescript style distinguished him as a foreigner.

Mrs. Slepak, raised a Catholic, is a Russian and economics student at the University of California.

They met, she said, while she was working as a nanny for a U.S. Embassy official in Moscow.

Hunter pleads no contest FBI man's killer faces jail

LITTLETON, N.H. (AP) — A deer hunter faces a year in jail and a $1,000 fine after pleading no contest to a charge of carelessly shooting a human being in connection with the hunting death of a former assistant director of the FBI.

Robert Daniels Jr., 22, of Lisbon, N.H., will be sentenced next month by Grafton County Special Judge Peter Smith.

County Attorney John Rolli recommended that Daniels' no contest plea to the misdemeanor charge be accepted.

Because of Sullivan's prominence, Rolli outlined the circumstances of the shooting to the court on Friday.

Sullivan, 65, retired from the FBI five years ago. He was the bureau's third-ranking officer and was in charge of all FBI intelligence operations.

Rolli said the shooting occurred shortly after 6 a.m. on Nov. 9.

"At that time of morning, vision would have been obscured. It was also a dark, gray day," he said.

Daniels was on one side of a field with a rise in the middle, and Sullivan was on the other side, he said. Sullivan was wearing a brown hat, white turtleneck sweater and red and black plaid shirt.

As Sullivan began to walk over the rise, his brown hat and white turtleneck became visible, Rolli said, and "Daniels saw a brown and white object . . . thought it was a deer and fired."

Rebel regime in Quebec splits Canada

By Henry Giniger

MONTREAL — The first year in office of a Quebec government dedicated to the political sovereignty of this largely French-speaking province has radically changed the political scene in Canada and divided Quebecers as rarely before. The unexpected electoral victory of the Parti Quebecois Nov. 15, 1976, threw the country into a confusion from which it has not yet recovered. English Canada tried to reassure itself by saying repeatedly that Quebec had simply voted for a better and more honest government than it had been getting from the Liberal Party.

N.Y. TIMES SERVICE

But, led by Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the country also sensed that it had entered a crisis by the simple fact that the government so elected was one that wished to pull Quebec out of the federation and establish a new relationship with the rest of Canada.

THE SENSE of crisis deepened through the year as the Parti Quebecois confirmed in various ways its basic option of independence. What had been unthinkable appeared gradually to be possible, and Canadians as a whole had to ask themselves whether a few years hence their country would still exist.

RENE LEVESQUE
Quebec Leader

Macleans, Canada's national news weekly, summed up the feeling by saying: "On Nov. 15, 1976, Canada entered a new era. In the year since, the unthinkable has suddenly become normal and the impossible suddenly conceivable."

Trudeau now has a special section in his office working on strategy to defeat "the separatists," the term applied to the Parti Quebecois.

Trudeau also has a task force going around the country soliciting opinions on how to keep Canada together and make it work better. Ordinary Canadians, when they are not forming a committee, go from unity conference to unity conference. Radio and television are full of the subject, as are newspaper letter columns. The country is being bombarded with opinion polls, often showing contradictory results.

UNITY HAS thus become a national obsession and, no matter how the Parti Quebecois eventually fares in Quebec, its simple presence has already provoked such a sentiment of national dissatisfaction with things as they are that some changes in Canada's political structures seem inevitable in any case.

In the spate of radio and television programs and newspaper articles marking the first anniversary, there has been general recognition that the Nov. 15 election was "historic" in the sense that neither Quebec nor Canada would ever be the same again. The dissatisfaction has been enhanced by continuing economic bad times. The rapid expansion of the '50s and '60s that made Canadians somewhat complacent about their country has changed into recession marked by the highest unemployment rates since the Depression of the 1930s.

The Canadian dollar dropped precipitously during the year, and investments slowed to a trickle, particularly by foreigners, who were put off by a combination of high wage rates, low productivity and political uncertainty.

IN QUEBEC, where unemployment was more than 11 percent in October, these ills were magnified to a greater extent than elsewhere, except for the four chronically poor eastern provinces.

Quebec's economic performance appeared to be the new government's most vulnerable point, but it was not until late in the year that it was able to produce a program to try to alleviate the situation.

In the meantime, the political warfare between Ottawa and Quebec that began almost immediately after the election centered increasingly on the economy, each side blaming the other for Quebec's economic woes.

Indeed, the name thrust of the federalist campaign against the Parti Quebecois has been to persuade Quebecers that if their cultural future is in no danger within the federal system, their economic future certainly is endangered outside it.

CANADIAN leaders, after saluting Quebec's act of courage and confidence in voting the Parti Quebecois into office, denounced the campaign as a "terrorist" one designed to play on deep-rooted complexes of inferiority and lack of confidence.

But the very nature of what the Parti Quebecois is proposing recognizes, at least implicitly, that voters need reassuring before taking the final plunge into independence.

The party seeks Quebec's political sovereignty combined with an economic association with the rest of Canada, and voters will be asked to approve this goal in a referendum to be held in about 18 months.

Words like "separation," "separatism" and "separatist" have been banished from the official vocabulary because they imply economic isolation. Officials have begun to shy away even from the word "independence," since it also conveys the idea of an unconnected Quebec off on its own.

DURING the year, the government sought to fulfill the party's pledge of providing a good provincial government while keeping its fundamental political aims in sight.

While the Parti Quebecois is in the main moderately leftist in social and economic doctrine, it includes a fairly heterogeneous group of people who are kept together by commonly held

To catch terrorists

Trudeau condones opening of mail

OTTAWA (AP) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Friday he does not consider the opening of mail by police to be a threat to civil liberties.

Defending the use of "disruptive tactics" against alleged terrorist groups by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Trudeau told a news conference a letter led to the capture last year of a member of the Japanese Red Army in Quebec. He said a terrorist was returned to Japan, where he was tried and jailed.

"So the RCMP found out about this by opening an envelope," Trudeau declared. He said if police had obtained a warrant and searched the building where the letter was delivered they would have tipped off the terrorist.

"How do you solve that one? I don't know," Trudeau said. "I'm not a police officer. But when you catch a terrorist because you've opened an envelope, I don't think the bulk of the Canadian people would think that this, even if it is technically a crime, would be something that should bring the RCMP to be put in jail."

The prime minister said it would be up to a commission headed by Justice David C. McDonald to determine if officers should be prosecuted for opening first-class mail. The commission is investigating reports that police violated the law by opening mail and also committed thefts and arson in an effort to block political terrorism.

Trudeau said some people in the RCMP made mistakes but the force was taking steps to avoid abuses.

"I can't get wildly excited about all these revelations," Trudeau said. "I can't get extremely shocked and indignant if they catch a terrorist by opening even my mail. I do like to remain private, but so what if they have some facts on me or on you? If they can catch a terrorist or a hijacker or a kidnapper — one out of five — that's a pretty good average. And I don't think our civil liberties are endangered in Canada by the RCMP or by anybody else."

He called "preposterous" reports that the RCMP security service in 1972 infiltrated a terrorist cell in Quebec and planned to hijack an Air Canada flight to turn Quebec voters against the Parti Quebecois.

Quebec splits Canada unity

nationalist views. In the same way, the party seeks to appeal to a broad section of voters, most of whom have conservative tendencies. Consequently what has seemed good government to some has looked bad to others.

The measures the government took showed a general tendency to line up with labor against management, with small home-owned businesses against large outside-owned ones, and in general with the French-speaking majority against the English-speaking minority.

Premier Levesque in particular, held up surprisingly well. Levesque's earnest, simple-minded approach to problems made him appear likable even to adversaries, so that the incident last February when he ran over a drunk and killed him in the middle of the night in Montreal was quickly forgotten.

Levesque's appeal has been all the greater because in the opposition camp within Quebec there is yet to emerge any leader of comparable stature. In the decision that Quebecers will soon be asked to make, Levesque's personality is expected to play a major role, particularly if it continues to meet little competition.

ABROAD. Levesque also scored points by gaining French support and sympathy in a three-day official visit to Paris earlier this month. France did not have much to offer in the way of economic backing, but this was primarily a political trip, and the primary benefit came in reinforcing the thesis of the Parti Quebecois that an independent Quebec will not be going it alone.

But the government's biggest international worry continues to be the United States. France seems far off to a lot of Quebecers, while the world's biggest power sits right on their doorstep and makes its presence felt in the local economy. Officials acknowledge that their efforts to court U.S. opinion had not produced very favorable results and that in this field Ottawa would appear to have the inside track.

Amtrak nominee may face derailment

Washington Star Service

WASHINGTON — One of President Carter's nominees to the board of Amtrak has run into problems because he has spent not enough time on the trains and too much time on the bandwagon.

The prospective director is Frank Neel, president of the Neel Air Conditioning & Heating Co. of Thomasville, Ga.

Neel was nominated to the board as a political independent and as one of three consumer representatives.

During recent hearings, however, it turned out that Neel has been a Democratic campaign worker and hasn't ridden a train in 13 years.

Specifically, Neel has been a strong political supporter of Carter since 1966 and, in fact, was a county chairman of Carter's presidential campaign and served for a time as a member of the Georgia State Democratic Executive Committee.

As for his representing consumers, Neel conceded to Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., Senate minority whip, that although he had recently ridden trains while on a vacation in Switzerland, the last time he rode a train in the United States was in 1964.

Griffin objected and there the matter stands. So far, no action has been taken on any of the six nominees.

Griffin pointed out that under federal law no more than five of the nine members of the board appointed by the president may come from the same political party. Yet, if the Senate were to approve all the nominees, the board would include five Democrats, one Republican and two independents — one of them Neel, whom he obviously considers another Democrat.

Griffin pointed out too that Carter had nominated Neel as a consumer representative, "and I question your credentials in that regard."

Shortly after the hearings, Neel signed a letter to Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., Commerce Committee chairman, saying that he was indeed an independent, work for Carter notwithstanding. The Georgia election laws, he said, do not allow citizens to indicate party preference in registering.

And he added that while he had campaigned on behalf of Carter, "I have voted Republican as often as Democrat. For example, in presidential elections I voted for General Eisenhower and Mr. Nixon twice. I have contributed to both parties."

The letter offered nothing further as to his nomination as a consumer representative, although some of those close to the situation say this could be more of a problem than his political standing.

According to some reports, consideration is being given to withdrawing Neel's name as a consumer representative and resubmitting it simply as a public member. The other nominee as a consumer representative is Anthony Haewell, a Chicago lawyer and Democrat, who organized, financed and ran a railroad passenger consumer association. A third consumer representative has not yet been appointed.

Alaska TV makes a dent in boozing

ANCHORAGE (AP) — Television may have replaced drinking as the favorite entertainment for some residents of 23 remote Alaska villages who got their first TV sets earlier this year, says a broadcasting official.

But Sen. Ted Stevens says he's worried about some aspects of TV on the villages, especially violence and "advertising aimed at young people to stimulate them to get grown-ups to buy products."

Mike Porcero, director of the Alaska Public Broadcasting Commission, said that in many villages television has become "a substitute for alcohol." Alcoholism is considered a major health problem in rural Alaska.

"I'm not saying it's going to stop drinking, but it will put drinking in another perspective," Porcero said Thursday. "The drinking won't be as bad as it would be if there were nothing else to do. Television provides an alternative, another source of entertainment and stimulation. That's a major problem during the cold, dark time of the year when there's nothing to do."

"WE SAY that in Anchorage, and we have concerts, television and movies. Remove all those and all you have is bars. Throw television into the equation and you have something to do. After a while, it may get old — but it's something to do."

Lino Barril, community liaison for the governor's Office of Telecommunications, said most reaction from the villages has been positive.

"They kind of like the commercials," he told the state legislature's Special Committee on Telecommunications. "They see them as another form of entertainment. There has been some negative comment that the commercials don't apply in the bush, but there has been no comment that they are detrimental to children."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday
YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: For awhile you seek easy outs to avoid lessons you must learn. Social contacts, emotional ties develop, sweep you along in a constructive pattern that helps you to simplify your life, do the things you really want to. Relations are complex; you have to rely on trust much of the time, but don't idealize others beyond their true virtues. Today's natives get involved in issues or phenomena outside individual or group control, often go the whole route for a social cause.

Catholics' new head sees serious church problems

By Kenneth Briggs
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Moments after finishing his first news conference as the newly elected president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops this week, Archbishop John R. Quinn was urgently called aside by a priest.

"We need you for a moment," the priest said. The priest went on to explain that a storm was brewing on a delicate theological matter which was soon to come to the floor of the bishops' meeting.

"You're the one who really has a grasp on the issue," the priest said, "and you're the one to address it."

Archbishop Quinn, who has headed the Archdiocese of San Francisco since last spring, is accustomed to being sought out for such arduous functions. A quiet, contained man with an incisive mind capable of drawing crucial distinctions, he has inspired confidence in various capacities in the church.

The author is religion editor of the New York Times.

of titular head of the nation's largest denomination has gained visibility and importance.

The choice of Quinn, 48, signified a preference for a leader who was well known and theologically conservative.

"He's like a lot of bishops," said the editor of a Catholic Jour-

ARCHBISHOP QUINN
"Church Never Stronger"

nal. "He's progressive on social issues and very conservative when it comes to doctrine and discipline."

The archbishop exhibits an unflappable style and a sense of firmness. Associates speak warmly of his humor, which is reflected in a ready grin and smiling eyes, and respectfully of his authoritative demeanor.

Short of stature, he is greying at the temples and meticulously groomed. He strikes an image as a polished, courtly gentleman, self-assured with a substantial element of modesty and self-effacement. He is at ease with the press.

ONE NATIONAL church staff member who has worked with Quinn referred to the archbishop's approach to church problems as "studied and fair-minded. He never gets heated or raises his voice."

In his new role, the archbishop will presumably attempt to apply a steady hand to a number of troublesome issues. He expressed confidence that the church could weather the storms.

"There is an upheaval in all of society, not just the church," he told reporters. "And for the first time in 20 centuries a Vatican Council was convened before the upheaval. It was not a reaction to a crisis. I think this was a sign of hope."

Asked where he found crucial resources, he somewhat surprised his listeners by first listing the papacy, which he said had "saved the faith and the church" despite the fact that some popes had been "weak and ineffectual."

Over the years, since he was elevated to the hierarchy in 1967 as auxiliary bishop of San Diego, the archbishop has been difficult to pigeonhole on a number of issues.

While bishop of Oklahoma, a position he served before moving to San Francisco, he fought against the death penalty, championed land reform and complained about extremism in the Right to Life movement.

While he is not expected to be a strong social activist, Quinn has supported the concept of shared authority and has argued forcefully for a definition of the church which places great emphasis on the role of the laity.

AMONG HIS primary concerns is the strengthening of family life.

"There is a profound malaise in marriage, sex and the family," he told the bishops in presenting a report on the family. "There is an all-pervasive, unresolved human crisis in marriage."

At another point in the proceedings, he heard a report that illustrates another problem, the quest by women for a larger role in church affairs. The report, based on a survey of the nation's dioceses, indicates that the percentage of women employed in church policy-making jobs is far below the proportion of women in the church population (well over 50 percent).

Among church professionals in decision-making in education, 22 percent were found to be women. Sixteen percent of social service policy-makers were women and 6 percent of health care executives were women.

Though Quinn has unflinchingly upheld church teaching on such matters as denying ordination to women and holding homosexual acts to be sinful, he is also known to be sensitive to the needs of those who disagree.

"The moral doctrine on homosexuality is clear," he said in an interview. "But the problem is trying to express this without damaging the sensibilities of homosexual people."

U.S. Catholics may change tradition of 1,100 years

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK — America's 49 million Roman Catholics have the choice, starting Sunday, of receiving the bread of Holy Communion in their hands instead of on the tongue as has long been the practice. Advance indications were for a smooth transition, with scattered dissent simmering down, even though distribution of communion on the tongue had been the only approved method for 1,100 years.

The new way is actually even older, however, and was the pattern for the first nine centuries of the church's history.

"This is something that a lot of people didn't realize before, that the change is really a return to an older tradition," says Rev. Dominic Turtora, pastor of St. Francis Church in Metuchen, N.J., where the new alternative already has been introduced.

Some of the church's 168 dioceses, estimated at fewer than 20, started the new option ahead of the Nov. 20 deadline set for the overall shift throughout the U.S. church and its 18,500 parishes.

Even then, it depends on "the individual action of the people," says Rev. John Rotelle, director of the U.S. Catholic Conference's liturgical office in Washington, D.C. "It's totally optional."

Movers & Doers

Rev. Ed F. Harness, a home missionary of many years standing, has been called as interim pastor of Harbor Baptist Church, 2300 W. Wardlow Road. Under his leadership, church has begun fellowship luncheons following services on first Sundays of each month.

Help is solicited in readying this column for the week of Nov. 26, Dec. 3. Because of the Thanksgiving holiday work schedule, "Goings on" must receive announcements for the coming week no later than 1 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 23. Understanding and cooperation of our religious community is asked.

And, announcements of church Christmas bazaars should be sent directly to this newspaper's Life/Style section. They will be featured there rather than on these pages today and in coming issues.

Catholic tradition to change

continue receiving communion in the same way. For them, there will be no change at all — except seeing others receive in a different way.

Noting that programs of instruction on the new option have been carried out in each diocese in advance of the general change, he said: "We had expected some negative response, but surprisingly, I've heard of none so far."

But probably, he adds, any signs of active dissent wouldn't show up until the general change commences. He says the only indications of it at the national office have been letters from individuals upset about it.

At Metuchen's St. Francis parish, where the new practice was inaugurated Nov. 5-6 as authorized for the Trenton, N.J., diocese, Fr. Turtora says, "Everything went very smoothly."

Although he's aware from conversations with individual parishioners that "some of them regret the church has taken the stand," allowing the option, he says that as it went into effect, "nothing was discernible" in the way of opposition.

"What surprised me was the number of senior citizens receiving in the hand," he says. "Far more of them than had been anticipated did so. In practice, the older generation is getting on the bandwagon, so to speak."

He estimates that a little more than half of the worshippers chose to receive in the hand, while the others continued to receive in the customary way — opening their mouths to receive the water on their tongues.

Protestants traditionally have received the communion bread in the hands.

U.S. Catholic bishops voted to approve the change last spring, after twice before rejecting it, in 1971 and 1973. Their decision, later confirmed by the Pope, came after about 53 other countries already had made the shift.

It is in line with the church's new emphasis on the maturity and dignity of the Catholic laity. At the time communion-on-the-tongue was initiated in the 10th century, the attitude was that only the priests' anointed hands were sufficiently holy to touch the communion elements.

NORMAN VINCENT PEALE The Power of Positive Thought Why we should be thankful

While thinking about a Thanksgiving column, I found a story from the life of Abraham Lincoln which embodies an important point that should be made at this great national observance.

Lincoln was spending the night in the home of an Illinois farmer. In the middle of the night, there occurred a tremendous and unique display of shooting stars. The heavens seemed filled with them.

The farmer was awakened and witnessed this extraordinary phenomenon. It frightened him and excitedly he called out to the sleeping Lincoln: "Abe, get up! Look out the window. The world's coming to an end!"

Lincoln quickly thrust his long body out of his comfortable bed and sprang to the window. He put out his lean neck and looked up at the sky. A slow smile spread over his face. He drew back into the room, went up to the farmer and put a reassuring arm around his shoulder.

"Don't be alarmed," Lincoln said. "Go back to bed. There may be some shooting stars, but the great constellations still stand."

It is so in American life. If upheaval follows upheaval, and conflict follows conflict, yet we can give thanks to Almighty God that the great constellations still stand. The ancient landmarks are there. The outlook for the future is not an unhappy one unless we make it so.

What are these ancient landmarks that still remain? Think a moment. For one thing, you are a free citizen; you are free, for example, to read this column or this newspaper, or not, just as you choose.

You are free to agree or disagree with what you read. The fact that you are reading it in a free press is another landmark. And you have the freedom to participate in a free election in which you have a free choice of candidates.

Perhaps the most precious of all these landmarks our ancestors left us is the right to worship as we please. Not only is religion—one of the most important bases on which America was founded—strong, but it is getting stronger all the time. This is especially significant because a free state rises or falls with the religion of its people.

These are some of the great constellations, the large things. We have much to be thankful for in them. But every constellation is made up of a myriad of smaller stars, and for these tiny stars we ought also be thankful.

For these are the things they have to do with individuals, and it is upon the sacredness of individual human personality under God that our whole system of free government rests. So we should also be thankful for our deep ingrained American respect for the personalities and rights of other which, in our own turn, give the opportunity to develop as we please within these self-same limitations.

In our day and age, we tend to discard old landmarks long before we have built new ones to replace them. Perhaps we ought to take more seriously the lines from the Book of Proverbs which warn: "Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set."

For our many opportunities we should indeed be thankful. These are many in number including the opportunity which the American way of life gives to realize our great potential.

We should also be thankful we have the opportunity to make social progress along with individual achievement. America has constantly demonstrated the particular genius to make opportunities for all men — of whatever color, religion or background. With God's help, we can realize the greatness that is in each of us and help to lift the level of men everywhere.

For what we have received, and have been, we Americans offer humble thanks on this coming Thanksgiving Day. And, more important, for what we can and will be.

"Whoso fighteth for the religion of God, whether he be slain or be victorious, we will give him a great reward." The Koran, Ch. 4.

Perhaps someone would like to explain to us what is wrong with Pastor Dixon "quoting the Bible for Gentiles"? (Religion, Nov. 5) The Lord Jesus' ministry while he was on earth was entirely to the Jewish people.

There were no gentiles born again until after he left and his agent, the Holy Spirit, came to reign . . . The ministry for the gentiles is found in the Book of Hebrews. Even in the Acts, the Bible mentions John's baptism, which was for the Jewish people while the Lord Jesus was on earth.

So why all the fuss about water as the Holy Spirit? Does anyone deny that the Holy Spirit has more power than water? I'd rather give God the glory via the Holy Spirit than give glory to water.

In my "Jewish Missions" class at Biola College we were taught that God's plan for the Jewish people was (to be found in) Romans 9 — the past, Romans 10 — the present, Romans 11 — the future.

I have great love for the Jewish people because the Lord told us to love the brethren, plus the fact the Jewish deapartment of Biola and the Church of the Open Door sponsored me as an immigrant permanent resident and paid my filing fee when I became a U.S. citizen.

REV. ELVA L. ROBERTS Long Beach

Michael E. Dixon, pastor of First Christian Church, Long Beach, had his Ordination recalled at a special Elders meeting on Aug. 16. This action was published in the Christian Standard on Oct. 23.

On Nov. 13, the Christian Standard carried another article about a minister at Calvary Christian in St. Louis, Mo., involving the withdrawal of the Ordination of Dr. David D. Stauffer and what rights and benefits one loses by this action.

It turns out that these men are great friends and Dixon made Stauffer his New Converts Teacher and has handled the preaching assignment at First Church on several occasions in Dixon's absence. (It is learned that) he is booked to speak at Dixon's Dec. 10 special all-church Christmas dinner.

(In the opinion of the letter writer, several changes occur):

1. They forfeit their rights and benefits of a public ministry among the New Testament churches — yet, they both are defying this.
- The Gospel is not under the authority of any man. Ordainment is required for purposes of performing marriage ceremonies legally and for the rights to enjoy certain tax benefits and exemptions.
2. They automatically rescinded their right to be an active member in the New Testament church.
- This goes double for Dixon as your bylaws give the Elders authority to declare him a disruptive member and take away his vote; also he cannot hold office within the corporation. This was done months ago.
- He has been directed by the Elders not to preach or teach anywhere within our building and has been asked to resign. All (of this) within the authority vested in the Eldership.
- (Bylaws) Art. IV, Sec. 3 — Powers — the Elders shall have power to regulate, manage and control the spiritual activities of the corporation and all of its conjunctive and subsidiary organizations and affairs and to exercise such power in conformity with the New Testament, which is declared a rule and practice therefor.
3. They (two ministers) automatically canceled their rights to the spiritual benefits of Christian baptism, including remission of sins; the article goes on to say it is a very dangerous thing for a person to denounce basic elements of what he at one time professed to believe.

"Then came Jesus forth, wearing the crown of thorns and the purple robe. And Pilate saith unto them. Behold the man! St. John 19:27.

Finally (hope was expressed in the magazine article) that congregations will take such action against ministers who profess to be New Testament church men and who do an about-face and try to introduce the tongues-Charismatic practice and theory into non-tongues churches.

Dixon stated from the pulpit recently that he was praying that I would speak in tongues and hug and thank him, and tell him that I love him. Also, until three weeks ago he was advertising in the Independent, Press-Telegram's Saturday Religion page that First Christian Church was a Charismatic Teaching ministry. It appears he is on his good behavior of late, awaiting the final decision of Judge Hampton Hutton on at least two important items that have not been resolved but hopefully will be on Tuesday.

I have absolutely no training in the law but common sense tells me there is a breach of contract here . . .

Services today for Rev. Cole

Memorial services for Rev. Harold Willard Cole, forty years a missionary to Japan, will be held today at 1 p.m. in the First Christian Church, 125 E. Fifth Street, with Rev. Dr. Kenneth Stewart and Glenn Westerberg officiating.

Cole, who observed his 71st birthday on Nov. 6, died Wednesday of cancer at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital. He is survived by his wife, Leone; sons, Harold Jr. and David; daughters, Mrs. Karen Lockwood and Mrs. Barbara Fahs and three grandchildren.

A former student in Pacific Bible Seminary, he earned undergraduate and graduate degrees from Long Beach's Pacific Christian College. He began his first ministry with the Yuma, Ariz., Christian Church in 1935, going on to missionary work in Japan in 1937. He established a preacher trainer college there.

Early in World War II, Mrs. Cole was evacuated on State Department orders to the U.S. He was repatriated in April 1941, shortly before the birth of their first child.

In 1943, Cole became a U.S. Army Air Force chaplain and was stationed three years in Kansas, Utah, Spokane and at all radar installations on from San Diego to Santa Maria, Cal.

After the war, he received permission to enter Japan in April 1947, with the family joining him in November. In Japan, Cole helped in establishing 12 churches.

The Coles' last task before leaving Japan in 1975 on emergency sick leave was in the mountains of Nagano prefecture. They assisted another missionary family in selecting and building a year-round Bible camp.

Holto & Sons Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Our First Christian Church active membership is 225 and this is the group which hired Dixon as NOT the senior minister but the preaching minister.

Brother Reuben Anderson, who had been a member most of 24 years and the senior minister 18 years, was the co-minister but he resigned due to Dixon's departure from traditional theology that had been taught at First Church for over 80 years.

B. L. SINGLETERRY
 Chairman, Board of Elders,
 First Christian Church, Long Beach

Thank you for running this correction — I am printing this time. I did not say (in Letters, Religion, Nov. 12) "We chose not to love these men as our elders . . ." (emphasis added).

I said, "We chose not to have these men . . ." An honest error, however one changing my whole thought from the previous sentence . . . We open our doors to anyone who is in need and wishes to worship with us."

God loved us before we were ever saved, while we were yet sinners. Christ died for us. Romans 5:8-11 explains what Christ did for me, and to do less for anyone would make me like the man who was not forgiving when he was forgiven Matt. 18:25-35. We do love these people and wish they would have never separated from us.

It is my desire for all to come together for a giant prayer meeting, and not leave until the differences are settled.

The state can never settle spiritual matters. Did the Roman government settle Jesus's or Paul's or Stephen's problems? They just try to eliminate it. The natural man can never receive the things of God. I Cor. 2:14.

The church should never go to court, especially against a brother. I Cor. 6:1-8.

I went to the First Christian Church of Long Beach, my first visit, to the worship service of that lovely old church. But what a shame to see so many of your city's elderly people sitting on metal folding chairs in the basement of a church that belongs to them.

Those same elderly people not only have maintained the church through the years, but with their property tax money they have helped maintain Long Beach.

A WORD OF THANKS

"IT IS A GOOD THING TO GIVE THANKS UNTO THE LORD, AND TO SING PRAISES UNTO THY NAME. O MOST HIGH"
 Psalms 92

Feeling gratitude for good is so important because a grateful heart recognizes God's goodness and is ready to receive more. Think of the good you have to be grateful for. Not things, but ideas and qualities that you enjoy in others, and which you express yourself.

Won't you bring your family to our Thanksgiving services. People will be sharing their gratitude by telling of proofs they've had of God's care.

We'd so love to welcome you on Thanksgiving Day.

CAR RIGGED WITH BOMB BY TREASURY AGENTS EXPLODES AT FORT MacARTHUR TO SHOW TRACING METHOD
—Staff Photos by ROGER COAR

Car blown apart for a good cause

Fort MacArthur blasts help identify source of explosives

By Cilla Brown
Staff Writer

A team of U.S. Treasury Department agents, watched approvingly by a U.S. congressman, bombed a house and a car on the Fort MacArthur Reservation in San Pedro Friday.

A lot of other people watched, too. The department's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) had invited hundreds of police officers, fire officials and assorted dignitaries to look on.

It was all part of a campaign to garner support for a Senate bill which would require all manufacturers of explosives to add a tracing element to their products, which ATF says would facilitate the tracking and apprehension of bombers.

The bureau, which is responsible for control of explosives under federal law, staged the bombing demonstration to illustrate the use of tiny, color-coded particles in explosive devices. These particles, called identification tags, can help investigators trace the explosives from their manufacturer to their last legal owner, according to ATF.

After their dynamite bomb, manufactured with the special microscopic tags, was detonated in a dilapidated house on the reservation, ATF investigators demonstrated techniques for the recovery and analysis of the particles.

The highlight of the event, however, came earlier, with the fiery car explosion. Rarely is an old auto demolished with such great ceremony.

ATF agents scurried about for some time rigging a plastic explosive device in the front seat of the vehicle, while various dignitaries made speeches to the assembled spectators.

Then, before television cameras, Rep. Glenn M. Anderson, D-Long Beach, and actor William Conrad took turns testing the plunger of the detonating device.

There was a countdown, and the plunger went down again. After a loud blast, the car exploded in flames, with a huge black cloud of smoke shooting into the sky over Fort MacArthur.

The little wooden house was next. Agents had planted an attaché case, filled with 7 sticks of dynamite and an electric clock device, in one of the rooms.

Another countdown. Anderson pushed the plunger again. Bang. The force knocked out several boards on one side of the building, but some of the television cameramen said they were disappointed. The car explosion was more dramatic.

After firemen put out the flames in the car, the press was invited to inspect the bomb sites. The blast had ripped off the top of the car. The upholstery didn't exist anymore. The window glass had melted into great green globs.

An ATF official said about a half pound of explosives was used to blow up the car. He said under typical circumstances, the bomber would have placed the device under the hood of the car and wired it to the ignition. Then, when the victim tried to start his car—Boom!

THE AGENTS pointed out that the plastic explosives used in the car did not contain the tracing element. "We just do this for show," one said.

The house bombing did not have the same spectator appeal, but the dynamite in the attaché case contained thousands of shiny particles, approximately the size of a grain of sand, which when placed under a microscope could tell investigators exactly where the dynamite was made and who had bought it.

AFT Deputy Director John G. Krogman said the development of these tiny "tags" represented "a landmark in our nation's campaign to curtail the menace of criminal and terrorist bombings."

Top woman racing pilot still flying high as aircraft salesperson at L.B. airport

By Helen Guthrie Smith
Staff Writer

She's been called Long Beach's first lady of flight, America's top woman racing pilot and a living legend in the flying world.

She's Fran Bera, winner of seven Powder Puff Derbies. She won the first year she entered that famous cross-country women's air race and made five second-place finishes. The most recent one was in the 30th and final derby last summer.

She set an altitude record in 1966 when she took a twin-engine Piper Aztec to 40,194 feet, higher than any plane in its class had ever flown. She also broke the sound barrier in a jet.

She went through astronaut training and parachute jumping and she acquired almost every flying rating from airline transport pilot to ratings for sea planes, hot air balloons and helicopters.

She has taught thousands of students to fly, ran her own flight school and was designated by the Federal Aviation Administration as an official FAA flight examiner with the power to grant pilot licenses.

She's flown charters, has been an executive pilot and a test pilot.

The 5-foot-tall flier carried with her a specially made, 6-inch-thick pillow to put behind her so her feet would reach the pedals.

Today Fran Bera still is doing the only thing she ever wanted to do — fly, and fly often. She's selling airplanes for Beechcraft West Aircraft Sales at Long Beach Airport and taking prospective buyers and others up several times a week on business, on newspaper interviews and for quick hops to ski slopes.

The pillow, given a new cover several times over the years, goes along.

Another in a Saturday Update series about persons and events that once made the news and what has happened since.

"Next month it will be 37 years since I started flying, and I've never been away from it," she said in a recent interview, recalling that she started taking flight lessons in Grand Rapids, Mich., when she was 16, paying for the instruction with her lunch money and salary, from odd jobs.

She estimated that she has about 20,000 hours in the air, but added, "I don't keep track."

Mrs. Bera, who's won more cross-country air races than any other woman in history, still is setting records.

The records now, however, are sales records. A trophy awarded the seller of a million dollars worth of airplanes—she closed the deals for them on the same day—decorates her desk.

Trans-America races no longer hold the lure they once did.

"I'm tired of it. Like anything else you do a lot, it grows old," she said. "I don't really try as hard anymore."

But once the race starts, she admitted, "I try to win."

A lot of that determination to win races is now going into learning to ski, an activity she says she loves, and into selling planes. She said she sells eight to 10 new Beechcrafts a year.

She said she has "no big plans" but that she is considering entering a round-the-world air race, tentatively set for 1980. Such a race has been her dream for a long time.

Although flying traditionally has been considered a man's field, Mrs. Bera said she never has been bothered by sex discrimination. Only once, she said, did a man refuse to take flying lessons from her because she was a woman. He later changed his mind and asked for her help.

"I'm not a women's libber," she said. "I've always been liberated."

L.A. Harbor aides move against Heim

Petitions rap former chief

By Jack O. Baldwin
Maritime Editor

Mayor Tom Bradley is expected to receive on Monday petitions circulating among the Los Angeles Harbor Department's 506 employees against the reappointment of former commission president Frederic A. Heim as a port commissioner.

Responding to the petitions' assertion that morale among department employees deteriorated while he chaired the Harbor Commission, Heim said Friday that when he left the commission 15 months ago, there were only six employee grievances on file, compared to 37 grievances filed since he left.

However, when questioned about the matter, Bill Stein, personnel director, said that of the 37 grievances, the majority were instigated by three employees, and all but eight grievances have been resolved.

Heim was reappointed to the Harbor Commission Monday by Mayor Tom Bradley. He left the commission in July 1976 to serve on the Department of Water and Power Commission.

The petitions charge that during Heim's 2½-year tenure as president of the five-member port governing board, he created "employee unrest" and that personnel morale "deteriorated."

The petitions contained 89 signatures late Friday, according to a petition circulator.

When Fred B. Crawford, Harbor Department general manager, learned Thursday that the petitions were being circulated, he issued a memorandum saying that employees were entitled to make their opinions known, but that the petitions should not be circulated during work hours nor with the use of any department equipment.

Bradley's press secretary said the mayor had no intention of backing down on Heim's reappointment. The appointment must be confirmed by the City Council, which is expected to act on the matter within a week or two, according to the press aide.

Bradley named Heim to serve through next June in the unexpired term of Victor Carter, who resigned because his personal business prevented him from devoting as much time to commission affairs as he thought necessary.

Stolen school checks worth $4,300 cashed

From Our L.A. Bureau

County Auditor-Controller Mark Bloodgood reported Friday that his office has turned up at least 11 stolen, forged Compton Unified School District checks which have been cashed for more than $4,300.

Because the checks came from old stock which has since been replaced, Bloodgood said it appears "we will never be able to determine how many were stolen."

He said the first two forgeries were discovered Monday and three more turned up Tuesday. Banks and financial institutions doing business with the county, which handles financial transactions for the school district, were notified and warned not to cash any of the checks from the stolen series.

As a result of that warning, an unidentified woman was arrested Wednesday trying to cash another stolen check. The woman has been released on bail, Bloodgood said.

That same day, however, two more forged checks were recovered and another four came to light on Thursday.

Several of the cashed checks have driver license numbers of the persons who cashed them on the reverse side. In one case there was a fingerprint of the person cashing the check; and one had a Social Security number on the reverse side. Police are working on these clues to track down the check-cashers, Bloodgood said.

He noted that the forged checks will be returned to the banks for reimbursement so neither the county nor the school district will suffer any loss.

Bloodgood blamed the theft on a lack of security. Compton school district officials have now been ordered by the county superintendent of schools to immediately implement proper security measures and to inventory the old stock of blank checks so that they can be destroyed.

Education solution to bias, says Justice Bird

By Dorothy Korber
Staff Writer

California Supreme Court Chief Justice Rose Bird traded her judicial robes for an academic gown Friday during a convocation celebrating the 50th anniversary of Compton Community College.

The event's main speaker, Ms. Bird outlined the problems facing Americans and challenged Compton students to become part of a "creative solution."

"I am especially pleased to be able to speak with you as one citizen to another rather than in my official capacity as chief justice," she said to the gathering of 400 students, teachers, staff members and guests. "This gives me the opportunity to discuss with you the human condition."

The speech continued on this solemn note as she commented that natural resources are being depleted, old people are being ignored and intolerance is widespread. She emphasized the problem of racial inequality at a school with a student body that is 85 percent black.

Sinatra in first TV movie

By Jay Sharbutt

HOLLYWOOD — Well, Old Blue Eyes is back again. This time, Frank Sinatra, 61, is in a three-hour NBC movie, "Contract on Cherry Street," which airs at 8 tonight on Channel 4. It's his first TV movie. He plays a deputy police inspector in New York, where the movie was made. He runs an elite unit formed to fight organized crime and get good press for the mayor. His crime-fighting force contains such fine actors as Martin Balsam, Harry Guardino, Henry Silva and Michael Nouri. As "Contract" is about cops and mobsters, shots are occasionally heard. And no less than 14 hearties, mostly bad guys, are dispatched during this proceeding, written by Edward Anhalt. True, 14 KJAs may be a mite excessive. But they are so spread out over the three hours, and the gore and on-camera violence is so minimal. Dirty Harry would turn over in his shoulder-holster. When it's time for a guy to be "taken out," a euphemism for "a hit," you usually only see the assailant firing his artillery at the camera, or a few .45-caliber air vents put in car windshields. There is much ado about folks being "taken out." If you don't pay attention, you may feel you're in a short-order corpse cafe. The film is a morality tale about honest, cynical cops tired of seeing their efforts sabotaged by their superiors, faint-hearted prosecutors and overly lenient courts. At one point, an embittered Balsam suggests the police take the law into their own hands, noting that even Sinatra at one time or another has "taken out" a no-goodnik. "Of course, I have," Frank gently replies. "So have a lot of other guys. But that's like playing God." And he mixes the idea. The cause of such talk is the cops' losing battle against stolen car parts operations involving two competing mobs. Sinatra's character is the kind of warm, decent, brooding police veteran who never tells his wife Verna Bloom what's bugging him, a theme you may have seen exercised before in "Police Story." Frustration is what's bugging him. And he finally sanctions police lawlessness when Balsam is slain by a black baddie Johnny Barnes during a raid on a garage where stolen cars are stripped for parts. Barnes has his hands up, but Sinatra coldly blasts him. As the deceased, whom Frank disliked anyway, worked for one of the two mobs, a plan is hatched for further police revenge. The gendarmes try to spark a war of the mobs by killing the leader of one gang. The plan doesn't work out, but bodies still fall and Guardino turns out to have a minor problem: He enjoys killing.

Sinatra does a good job, but the plot get mighty murky, the dialogue occasionally is laughable, and this "Contract" seems padded. Its pace might have been better at two or 2½ hours.

All things considered, though, it's a passable way to kill Saturday night if you've nothing better to do. But considering the talented cast, it's a pity they had nothing better to do.

Big wins for Poly, Millikan

Rabbits, 13-6

Rams, 15-6

By John Lowe
Staff Writer

Poly High may have been surprised when it was admitted to the CIF football playoffs, but that was nothing compared to the thousand-volt jolt the Jackrabbits handed Santa Monica High Friday evening.

Thoroughly outplaying their heretofore unbeaten hosts, Poly, a mere fourth in the Moore League, planted the Coastal Conference's top seed at Santa Monica Junior College, 13-6.

Improbable Poly (5-5) manufactured Long Beach's first playoff win in five years behind tailback Richard Davis, who rushed for 150 yards and the game-winning touchdown; quarterback Mark Hayworth, who threw eight completions in 12 attempts, one for a TD, and a tough defense that held to a minus-19 yards rushing the Viking attack that had netted 25 points per game in a 9-0 regular season.

After the Jackrabbits handed the Vikings a first quarter score — Kevin Reynolds hitting Ricky Williams for a 20-yard TD after Poly muffed a punt at its 22 — Davis stormed over from the 11 with 2:57 remaining before intermission. Eric Hertzog's conversion gave Gene Noji's wild-card club the advantage for good.

Then, with 5:18 to go in the game, Hayworth, who replaced season-long starter Alvin Eston, culminated his night with his most critical completion, a 28-yard scoring strike to Chuckie Allen.

That finished an unbelievable 21-play drive that consumed 12 minutes. Twice in that interval the error-prone Vikings committed penalties which allowed Poly to retain possession.

The mammoth march started when Santa Monica tailback Derek Singleton, in the clear and just three yards from a score, fumbled into the end zone where Marvin Lard recovered with 5:29 to go in the third quarter.

How many times can you recall an offensive unit being applauded by its fans after a drive stalled and no points were registered on the scoreboard?

It happened to Millikan High Friday night, and deservedly so after the Rams came within 23 seconds of not letting Muir run off a play in the fourth quarter.

The performance came in what had to be Millikan's finest hour ever in football, a 15-6 victory over Muir at Pasadena City College.

The first-round CIF Coastal Conference game was Millikan's first playoff win in the school's 22-year history.

On a night when all the scoring came in the first half, it was hard to determine who deserved more credit — Millikan's offense or defense.

Although the Rams were victimized for 107 yards by Muir tailback Mike Jenkins, they rose and stopped the Mustangs on a big fourth down play on the Millikan five with 1:20 remaining in the third quarter.

The next time the Pacific League co-champions regained control of the football, the clock showed only 0:23 to go in the game.

What happened in the intervening 12 minutes and 47 seconds was a classic example of how to run down the clock.

The Rams, throwing only one pass—which was incomplete—ran off 23 successive plays in moving the football 90 yards from their five to the Muir five.

The impetus came from a fourth down euroachment call on Muir's defensive right end when the Rams would have had to punt from their own 11.

Kim Nikoietich took over after that, carrying the ball 11 times in the drive that was finally stopped after the Rams had been called for illegal procedure inside the Muir 10.

CAMARILLO — Lakewood High gave it an arm and a leg against Camarillo Friday night.

The arm belonged to Tom Tereschuk. The leg was Kenny Hironimus'.

But each was effectively countered as the host Scorpions emerged with a 12-3 win in a CIF Coastal Conference playoff opener.

Camarillo's alienating quarterbacks, Brian Phelps and Tony Lindquist, battled Tereschuk to a statistical standoff, but Camarillo missed fewer opportunities and came up with one big play to oust the Moore League representative.

Tereschuk was spectacular. The 6-1 senior completed 20 of 39 passes for 263 yards, even though many were desperation attempts as the Lancers watched the clock run out.

Yet Phelps and Lindquist matched Tereschuk's figures with 271 yards on a combined 15 of 28 throws. More importantly, they were equally capable of converting on long third down passing plays.

Camarillo, the Maramonte League champion, which now has a 9-1 over-all record, waited until the second half to do most of its offensive damage. Although several chances were missed, the clincher came late in the third period after the second of three Tereschuk interceptions.

Immediately, the Scorpions found themselves facing a third-and-six at their own 41-yard line. But Phelps, dropping back to avoid the Lakewood rush, completed a pass to the evening's top receiver, Randy Bell, who caught the ball on the Lakewood 10.

Bell slipped one tackle and raced untouched to the end zone.

Phelps finished with 11 of 13 completions for 187 yards, many of them to Bell, who hauled down six passes for 147 yards.

Lakewood's only score came on Hironimus' 25-yard first quarter field goal, the result of a drive typical of Tereschuk's passing.

Tereschuk, hoping to lead Lakewood to its sixth win in nine games, missed a drive-opening pass, then hit slotback Hironimus for 17 yards to the Camarillo 37.

Channel Islands High used two big plays to put the game away in the first half, then held off St. Anthony for a 20-0 win in the first round of CIF playoffs Friday night before 3,200 spectators at Hueneme High.

One was a pitch to speedster Jeff Benson, good for 54 yards to the Saint 10 near the end of the first quarter, and halfback Poa Saitale scored from three yards out two plays later.

The second came only two minutes into the second quarter on an 83-yard pass play. Raider quarterback John Sellers hit tight end Darryl Benson, who took the ball on the Saint 47 and outraced the secondary.

The final Channel Islands score, four minutes before the half, came as fullback Jim Laurent scored from one yard out to cap an eight-play, 34-yard drive.

The winner's Wishbone ground attack lived up to expectations with 250 yards, but it was the failure of the Saints' aerial game that was the real culprit.

The Long Beach team completed only four of 24 passes in the face of a strong Channel Islands rush which sacked Saint quarterbacks four times for 51 yards.

St. Anthony missed a golden chance to get on the board midway through the third period when linebacker Ken Bielman picked off a Raider pass and returned it to the Channel Islands 41.

Tim Esposito found Antonio Anderson for six yards, Channel Islands was offside, Lakers: who needs Kareem?

By Doug Ives
Staff Writer

A balanced attack is something nice to have in any sport, and the Lakers had the perfect blend Friday night as they romped over the Detroit Pistons, 116-83, at the Forum.

All nine Lakers played and eight of them scored in double figures, led by rookie center James Edwards with 19 points. The ninth player, Ernie DiGregorio, didn't score but didn't try. He handed off for 11 assists in 20 minutes.

Detroit, playing without center Bob Lanier, started fast, leading 9-2. But the Pistons misfired badly the rest of the way and shot a horrible 34 per cent from the field.

Their 83 points was the second lowest in the NBA this season. It wasn't just the shooting, however. The Pistons committed 30 turnovers, leading to 25 Laker points.

The victory brought the Lakers up to .500 at 7-7, the same figure they had a year ago at this time when center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar was healthy. Abdul-Jabbar will miss Sunday's game against Chicago and probably road games in Phoenix and Seattle next week.

Coach Jerry West, angered over the loss to Cleveland on Tuesday, was all smiles after his team's easiest win of the season.

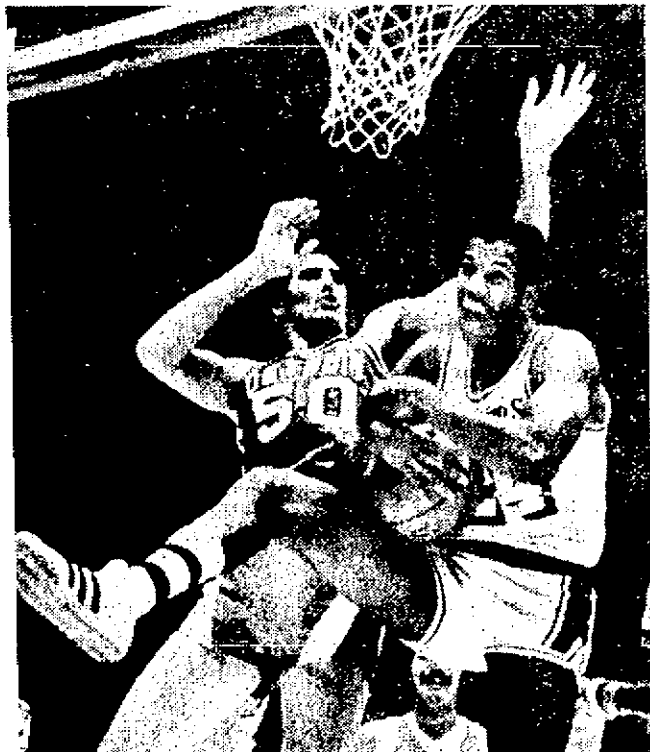

The Lakers led 23-18 after the first period, then broke open the game with a 36-point second quarter, highlighted by 67 per cent shooting. At one time in the third stanza the Lakers led by 35.

Jamaal Wilkes, Lou Hudson and Earl Tatum collected 15 points, Don Ford and Kermit Washington 14, Tom Abernethy and Norm Nixon 12.

Ford (7 of 11), Wilkes (6-11), Tatum (7-10), Washington (6-8) and Abernethy (6-9) contributed to the Lakers second best field goal percentage of the season—.539.

Tatum had shot only 25 per cent from the field in his last four games.

McCluskey looks for a home run against BYU

By Jim McCormack
Staff Writer

PROVO, Utah — For Jim McCluskey, Monday is the worst day of the week.

"Mondays are always terrible," McCluskey says. "You ache all over, and you don't feel like practicing."

It's been even tougher recently, for McCluskey, the starting tight end on the Long Beach State football team that will challenge Brigham Young University today.

"I'm just as sore as ever on Mondays now," McCluskey admits, "but it's tougher going to practice knowing you've lost five in a row. Until this year I'd never lost more than two games in a row in my life."

It doesn't mean he isn't ready by game time.

"I'm always ready to play," McCluskey responds.

He's particularly "ready" for today's intersectional encounter with the Cougars, who are 7-2 and the nation's No. 1 passing team.

The contest begins at 12:30 p.m. (PST) and can be heard on KKOP-FM (93.5).

"I'm really 'jacked' up for this game," McCluskey says. "My brother (Mark) played here two years ago. I know a lot of fellows who attend BYU. . . and, when I was a senior in high school, they told me I wasn't good enough to play here."

"I've got something to prove," he says. "I'd like to catch a lot of passes."

McCluskey has caught 20 for 240 yards and two scores, a total, he candidly declares, that disappoints him.

"That's not enough," McCluskey says of his 20 receptions. "I thought I'd have more."

While McCluskey would like higher totals, 20 receptions would have been his career total if tight end responsibilities had not been changed by Long Beach's new coaching staff.

McCluskey is an avid fan of the Wayne Howard era at LBSU, although it was physically demanding for him.

"We played a lot of 'double tight' formations and there were games when I never ran a pass pattern," McCluskey relates. "Sometimes I'd run five or six patterns, but I never ran more than 10."

That meant McCluskey was, basically, an offensive tackle wearing an end's number. The opposition simply put a player over McCluskey and "tried to knock my head off."

This season has been a marked contrast. McCluskey often runs as many as 35 patterns a game, and because of his new versatility, his blocking situation has improved, too.

"I like to catch the ball," says McCluskey, "but I like to block, too, and being a receiver gives me an advantage because they (the opposition) can't be sure what I'm going to do when I leave the line of scrimmage."

While McCluskey's assignments have changed, he still gets hit often. As a blocker, it was McCluskey hitting a defensive player. Now, as a receiver, the defensive player does the hitting.

Ohio State vs. Michigan: Two immovable forces meet

Compiled from I, P-T News Services

College football games don't come much bigger than the annual war between Michigan and Ohio State, and today's confrontation in Ann Arbor, Mich., is no exception.

Consider:

- For the ninth time in the past 10 years the game will determine the Big Ten Conference representative to the Rose Bowl.
- It will be witnessed by 104,000 fans and a national television audience of millions (Channel 7, 9:45 a.m.).
- Both teams enter the contest with 9-1 records, but fourth-ranked Ohio State owns a one-game lead over the fifth-rated Wolverines in the conference standings at 7-0 to 6-1, after Michigan's upset 16-0 loss to Minnesota.

• Michigan is favored by two points.

Why have these schools so completely dominated their conference?

"I don't know," replied the Buckeyes' eloquent coach, Woody Hayes.

He doesn't really care, either.

"We're both fine schools and both have fine football tradition. That has a lot to do with it," Hayes said. "I'm not going to worry or ponder about it any more than that."

It doesn't look like he'll have to worry about the weather, either. Snow flurries that hit the area Thursday and Friday were expected to disappear, leaving 40-degree temperatures and partly cloudy skies.

But Hayes does have other things to occupy his concern — like Michigan, which must win to advance to Pasadena for the Jan. 2 Rose Bowl.

"This is a typical Michigan team," Hayes said. "They are solid both offensively and defensively. Their attack is very similar to ours. They like to run the ball the same as we do but they have done a pretty good job of passing the ball, too."

Michigan's Bo Schembechler, who played and coached under Hayes, also sounds a lot like Woody when evaluating the game.

"Their offense is actually very similar to ours," Schembechler said. "I believe this Ohio State team is better offensively than last year due to more quickness and speed at quarterback, more quickness and speed at fullback and a fine blocking offensive line."

"Its defense is the same — big, tough, strong and quick. It will be a game in which mistakes and execution will decide the outcome."

Both offenses do their work chiefly on the ground. In fact, Ohio State, behind 1,000-yard man Ron Springs, leads the nation in rushing. Michigan has been buoyed by the news that its tailbacks, Harlan Huckleby (hamstring pull) and Roosevelt Smith (knee injury), are "fit and ready to run," according to Schembechler.

However, each school also has a high-percentage passer at quarterback. Rod Gerald has hit 58 per cent of his throws for the Buckeyes and Rick Leach, who Schembechler has insisted he would not trade for anybody, is just over .500.

WOODY HAYES
'It's fun'

Despite the near-religious importance assigned to the game, Hayes maintained it is still fun.

"If you enjoy coaching it is fun," he said. "We look forward to it and work towards it. Even the players look forward to it because it is the final week of the season and we have less work."

Schembechler agreed.

"I try to keep things in perspective," said the man who has a history of heart ailments. "After all, it is only a game."

It is... until the opening kickoff.

Michigan students 'egg' Woody on

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ohio State football coach Woody Hayes may wind up with egg on his face today.

That is, egg on the face of an effigy.

His tormentors are not wearing maize and blue helmets nor are they working under the direction of Bo Schembechler, the Michigan football coach.

They are undergraduate mechanical engineering students of Prof. Leland Quackenbush, who selected a life-size model of the Buckeye coach as a target for this term's class project — egg-throwing machines.

At least a dozen of the eggflinging doo-dads were entered in the contest, set for high noon on the Diagonal in front of the main library.

Quackenbush, a 1942 Michigan graduate, disclaimed any credit for either the project or the "testing" device.

"This is an annual affair," the professor said. "The students decided on the project and a committee of students came up with the choice of Coach Hayes as the target. They also built the target."

"There is a $10 limit on how much they can spend on these gadgets and the rules say they must be free-standing," he said.

Entrants get a chance to lay two fresh eggs on Woody, starting at 20 feet and backing up 10 feet at a crack. The winner is whoever socks it to Woody from farthest away. The prize is a pair of free dinners at an Ann Arbor restaurant.

"I've heard some remarkable stories," Quackenbush laughed. "Some say they are accurate up to 100 feet."

"Of course, we want to discourage students from taking the device to the game tomorrow."

Quackenbush's classes have earned a fair reputation for zany projects. One year they drew national attention with a race by vehicles propelled only by the energy contained within a can of beer.

Rams, 49ers: Who cares?

BUD
TUCKER

SAN FRANCISCO — If you were around at the time, you will recall how the intense rivalry between the Rams and San Francisco 49ers influenced the lives of their sufferers.

Statistics revealed that during the autumn period when the professional teams were operating, there were marked increases in the divorce and suicide statistics. What was more, there was a dramatic effect on the figures involving alcoholism and insanity.

The Rams-49ers thing was bigger than the annual commotions of the Cals and Stanfords or even the Harvards and Yales.

I mean, it was large. If the outcome of a game between the Rams and 49ers was not the most crucial aspect of your life, you might just as well have been living in Boise.

Clearly, you did not know a chicken has lips.

THEY CAME by all means, but a popular vehicle of the day was the special train. Supporters of the visiting side would load up several cars, including one established as a tavern, and the trip to the game would take several days.

The avenues and boulevards would be awash with ladies and gentlemen wearing and waving the colors of the visiting team. With tolerance and understanding, the local police would empty the jails in time for the clients to get to the stadium in time to witness the kickoff.

There was as much action in the seats as on the field. Guys punched each other out and gals did strip teases. Everybody yelled and sang and drank.

If nobody knows how these things get started, they certainly cannot place the finger on how they end.

For instance, the Rams and 49ers play here Sunday and to hear the rival coaches tell it, considerable is at stake.

"This is our biggest game of the season," says Chuck Knox of the Rams.

"This is our season," says Kenny Meyer of the 49ers.

Regardless of the outcome, there figures to be no increase in the normal action at Golden Gate Bridge Monday morning.

The scattering of Ram fans here insists San Francisco blew the spirit that once existed.

There is no question a losing team will turn off a supporter, but there is feeling that San Francisco is losing interest in everything except its role as the national headquarters of the cocktail hour.

Commenting recently was Al Davis of the Oakland Raiders. Davis is the NFL's foremost disturber of the calm, and a rivalry instigator.

"We tried everything to get something going," Davis said. "It seemed nothing would work. What could be more natural than a team in San Francisco and the Super Bowl champions across the bridge in Oakland?"

Actually, the people of San Francisco have always regarded the Oakland crowd as one in which everybody is named Stanley and wears a duty T shirt and drinks beer out of the can.

Kenny Meyer, the coach who came from the Rams, hasn't noticed that the interested parties of San Francisco are any different than elsewhere.

"When we were 0-5, they wanted my rear end," Kenny says. "Now we have won four in a row and they don't seem to think I'm all that bad a guy."

"The Rams? No, I don't think it makes any difference anymore. If we continue to win, they'll stay happy. If we start losing again, they'll probably resume suggesting that I leave town."

He will have to fly or drive because the special trains are no longer running.

More's the pity.

You wouldn't know it from the hoopla surrounding the Ohio State-Michigan matchup, but there are some other college football games being played today... and some significant ones, too.

In the Pacific-8, 20th-ranked UCLA is idle but may have a celebration scheduled anyway. If Washington State defeats Washington at Seattle in a regionally-televised game (Channel 7, 1 p.m.) and California subdues Stanford in Palo Alto, the Bruins will be going to the Rose Bowl no matter what happens against USC next week.

However, both of those northern rivalries are so close this year — in talent and in spirit — that UCLA can't afford to begin counting its roses.

Washington and Washington State enter the game with 6-4 overall records, although the Huskies are favored by seven points. They lead the series 43-20-6.

The Huskies, ranked 19th nationally, are riding high after successive victories over California (50-31) and USC (28-10). A victory today coupled with a USC victory next week would put Washington in the Rose Bowl for the first time since 1964.

However, Washington State, which is hopeful of attracting the attention of another bowl, has won three in a row after losses to USC (41-7), UCLA (27-16) and Stanford (31-29) made the Cougars early also-rans in the run for the roses.

The game matches a pair of talented quarterbacks. Warren Moon, who has passed for 1,425 yards and eight touchdowns and run for 218 yards and six touchdowns, calls the signals for Washington. WSU's Jack Thompson is the nation's third ranked passer and is fifth in total offense with 2,194 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Stanford, which lost 49-0 to USC two weeks ago, suddenly finds itself with a shot at its third Rose Bowl berth of the 70s.

If Washington and UCLA lose, the Cardinals would go to Pasadena with the best over-all record. But first they must get by California, which is also fighting for an at-large bowl invitation and is favored by three today.

Oregon and Oregon State scratch to stay out of the Pacific-8 cellar.

IN GAMES INVOLVING the country's top-ranked teams, No. 1 and unbeaten Texas hosts Baylor, sixth-rated Notre Dame entertains the Air Force, Tennessee travels to No. 7 Kentucky, Southern Methodist is at No. 8 Arkansas, 12th-rated Arizona State journeys to Colorado State, San Diego State hosts No. 13 Florida State, No. 14 Texas A&M is at Texas Christian, South Carolina welcomes No. 15 Clemson, No. 16 Texas Tech is at Houston for a night game, Long Beach State meets 17th-ranked Brigham Young, and No. 18 North Carolina is at Duke.

Second-ranked Alabama, No. 3 Oklahoma, No. 9 Penn State, 10th-ranked Pittsburgh and No. 11 Nebraska are idle.

House subpoenas NCAA's records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House investigations subcommittee subpoenaed records of the National Collegiate Athletic Association Friday because, the panel said, of the NCAA's reluctance to supply them voluntarily.

Chairman John E. Moss (D-Calif.) threatened Walter Byers, NCAA executive director, with a fine and imprisonment if NCAA staff personnel "endeavor to influence, intimidate or impede any witness" before the committee.

The subcommittee on oversight and investigations of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has been looking into the disciplining practices of the NCAA to determine whether the organization's policies violate antitrust laws, whether its investigative methods provide due process and whether the penalties assessed to member institutions, athletes and coaches are fair and equitable.

In his letter to the NCAA, Moss said he ordered the subpoena, which probably will be served Tuesday, because Byers had invoked "certain confidentiality provisions of the NCAA Manual as your reason for not complying with our lawful request."

"Quite simply, neither the NCAA nor any other association can, by agreement among themselves, take away the investigatory powers of the Congress under Article I of the Constitution of the United States," said Moss. "It disturbs me greatly to see that you evidently fail to appreciate both the magnitude of those powers and the seriousness of our purpose."

Rep. Jim Santini (D-Nev.), a member of the subcommittee who called for the NCAA investigation after the association placed the University of Nevada-Las Vegas on probation for two years, said in a statement: "By refusing to volunteer information, the NCAA is only raising more questions and fueling suspicion that it has something to hide."

"The association's decision to stonewall will only serve as a further incentive for the subcommittee to get all the facts behind the NCAA puzzle. I would hope that Chairman Moss' letter convinces the NCAA that the subcommittee means business," said Santini.

In his letter, Moss also said the subcommittee had received what he described as disturbing reports that officials at NCAA member institutions have received telephone calls from NCAA staff about this Congressional investigation.

"Those calls have been perceived, rightly or wrongly, as veiled threats of reprisal," he said.

Orlando ready to resume career after breakdown

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Tony Orlando says he is ready to resume the music career halted by pressure and depression and credits a "miracle drug" for the recovery.

Orlando, rehearsing his new show in his Brentwood home, said that the drug lithium has eased the terrors of manic-depression that prompted his retirement from show business last summer, and he's ready to face a night club audience next week.

IN AN agonizing last performance in Cohasset, Mass., last July, a haggard Orlando stopped the music midshow and told a stunned audience, "This is my last day as a performer." He spoke of the suicide death of his close friend Freddie Prinze, saying, "My best friend had the nerve to blow his brains out."

Orlando was ushered out of town and into a convalescent hospital in New York, where he began psychiatric treatment.

"I was sick, let's face it," Orlando said. "I ended up at Four Winds (an upstate New York sanitarium) with a whole crew of psychiatrists working with me."

"They gave me medication that literally stabilized my problem — it's a miracle drug, really — called lithium. It stabilized the highs and lows of the manic depressive state."

ORLANDO said the grief over the death of his mentally retarded sister, followed by the suicide of Prinze "just got to me."

"Freddie died in my arms," Orlando said, "which is depressing for anybody, much less a manic depressive. Freddie died at my elbow. You know, with that look-alike thing and all, I imagined myself in the same situation." Prinze's death and the pressures of television "just exaggerated my neuroses and I just cracked up."

And I didn't even have the time for the luxury of a mourning period. I'll never do that again."

"When you're manic you have this tremendous flow of energy, creative energy, but you don't get anything done," he said, recalling the months before his breakdown. "The highs are completely unrealistic; you see things in an unrealistic way, you have the urge to go out and buy unrealistic things, like Elvis (another deceased friend) used to do. He used to go out and buy people cars."

Orlando said that through five months of therapy — "And I mean heavy therapy, seeing the psychiatrist nearly every day" — he was able to reach the point where the thought of facing an audi-

Montreal (what slump?) takes on Kings at Forum

By Al Larson
Staff Writer

Everyone knew Montreal's slump wouldn't last.

After managing only one win in five games, the Canadiens have reeled off four successive wins — and that means trouble for the Kings tonight when they battle the Stanley Cup champions at the Forum.

Tonight's NHL joust at 8 o'clock is a sellout.

Montreal always straightens itself out," Kings general manager George Maguire said Friday. "They have a great club."

Hockey observers were beginning to wonder if perhaps Scotty Bowman's Canadiens were getting fat after winning back-to-back titles. The talk started when the Kings dealt Montreal its first loss of the season, 5-3, and Buffalo followed with a 4-0 triumph the next night. But Montreal, which lost only eight games last season, is on the right skate and suddenly has surged into a seven-point lead over the Kings.

"The league is much better than it was last year," Bowman said after his club battled for nearly two full periods before scoring on the Colorado Rockies en route to their fourth win in a row.

"Where Montreal has the advantage over everyone else is in its depth," Kings coach Ron Stewart said. "Injuries are the main thing with any team, but Montreal doesn't have to worry as much because its talent runs so deep," Stewart reasons.

KINGS NOTES — Guy Lafleur, last year's leading scorer with 136 points (56 goals, 80 assists), has scored 15 goals this year — all but one of them at home. Before the home fans, Lafleur has had three-goal games against the Kings and Toronto and two-goal games against Minnesota, the New York Rangers and Boston. In 11 seasons, the Kings are a woeful 5-18-5 vs. Montreal at home and 9-37-11 overall. Last season the Canadiens won the Norris Division by a whopping 40 points over runnerup L.A. Tonight's match is the second of six meetings between the division rivals. Marcel Dionne, who finished second in the scoring race a year ago with 122 points, has gone three games without a goal or an assist. Asked if the Kings lack the killer instinct since they've blown leads in three successive games and had to settle for ties in the last two, Stewart said, "We must not be bearing down. When we get 80 shots in two games but score only three goals, something's wrong. We're getting the bloody opportunities. It's not from lack of working. Our inability to score is either the result of the other goalie playing well or bad shooting."

Petty sizzles 154 mph

Richard Petty and Neil Bonnett Friday put nearly identical 1974 Dodge Chargers in the two front row starting positions for Sunday's Ontario 500 stock car race, the farewell performance for one of the most successful models in Grand National history.

Petty led an assault of four drivers Friday on David Pearson's year-old record of 153.964 miles per hour at the 2.5-mile Ontario Motor Speedway oval.

Petty, winner of 184 career Grand National races — at every track except Ontario — averaged 154.905 mph on the second of his two qualifying laps, relegating Bonnett's 154.647 mph effort, with an engine not set up for qualifying, to second spot.

"We're in a good position to take a run at it Sunday," said Petty, who has finished in the top 10 only twice in his five races at Ontario. "We've always run well here. We just haven't run far enough. It would be a nice note to end the season on."

And a fitting sendoff for the Charger, which has accounted for about three dozen Petty victories, and another dozen or so for other drivers who have piloted the sleek machines over the years.

Bonnett drove his Charger to the first Grand National victory of his career earlier this year.

"I feel good about the strength of the engine in this car today," said Bonnett. "We lost our quali-ing motor in practice yesterday (Thursday), and had to put our race engine in. We felt like there was even more power in the engine that broke."

"But when we came out this morning, we were flying in practice. The car handled just super," Bonnett added. "It's been awhile since we've run like this."

A.J. Foyt earned the No. 3 position in the 40-car lineup with a speed of 154.281 mph in a Chevrolet. Pearson was the other record breaker at 154.262 mph in a Mercury.

Half of the starting field was set Friday, with the remainder to be determined today.

Zamora seeks to launch new streak

Alfonso Zamora will try to begin a new streak tonight.

Zamora won his first 23 professional fights by knockouts, but the string ended April 23 when he was knocked out in the fourth round of a non-title bout by World Boxing Council bantamweight champion Carlos Zarate.

Zamora, of Mexico City, will make the sixth defense of his World Boxing Association bantamweight crown tonight against No. 5 contender Jorge Lujan of Panama City at the L.A. Sports Arena.

The bout is part of a WBA championship doubleheader. Guty Espadas of Mexico will make the third defense of his flyweight title against No. 6 contender Alex Santana of Nicaragua.

A crowd of more than 12,000 is expected for the scheduled 15-round title fights and a card that includes a 10-round bantamweight bout between No. 3 contender Roberto Rubaldino of Mexico and Antonio Paisano of Nicaragua.

Zamora will earn $10,000 plus ancillary rights from radio and television to Mexico. Espadas, 23-2-5 with 18 knockouts, will receive $10,000 plus TV rights outside of Mexico.

The card will be shown on closed-circuit television to outlets in California, Texas and Mexico.

Lujan, who has a 20-1-1 record with 14 knockouts, will earn $12,500. Santana, 26-6-3 with 16 knockouts, will collect $5,000.

"I think I'll win by knockout," said the 23-year-old Zamora. "I don't think it will be my most difficult fight, but it will be a tough one. Lujan has been around."

"I have no predictions," said Lujan, who is 26. "I'm ready for my best fight and I'm confident. All I want to do is fight the best fight possible."

Angels' efforts to land Mauch hinge on meeting today with Twins' boss

By Tracy Ringolsby
Staff Writer

The next move in the Angels' efforts to hire Gene Mauch as their manager is up to Mauch.

Mauch, who has one year remaining on his three-year contract to manage the Minnesota Twins, will talk to Twins owner Calvin Griffith today. Griffith originally gave Mauch permission to contact the Angels about managing the Gene Autry-owned team, but later changed his mind. Since that time, the Angels have offered the Twins a second-line pitcher and cash in exchange for Mauch, but Griffith officially turned down that deal Friday.

In Minnesota, the Twins' board of directors decided that it wants to retain Mauch as manager.

"Gene (Mauch) is going to talk to Calvin about the situation himself this weekend," said Angel executive vice president Buzzie Bavasi. "The unfortunate thing about the situation is Calvin did give Gene permission to talk to Mr. Autry and started the whole thing. I think it will be reconciled one way or another by the end of the weekend."

If Mauch is unsuccessful in getting his release from the Twins, Dave Garcia, hired in July to manage the Angels and given a contract through next season, is expected to remain the Halos' boss.

Bavasi also is hopeful of knowing by Monday whether the Angels will sign free-agent outfielder Lyman Bostock, who was second in the American League in hitting with a .336 average last season. Bavasi met Friday with Abdul Jabbar, Bostock's agent. The Angels' main competition for Bostock is coming from the New York Yankees.

The Angels have given right-handed pitcher Wayne Simpson, from Compton's Centennial High, his release and have replaced him on the 40-man winter roster with catcher Stan Cliburn.

specific down payment, just your good credit.

ASK ABOUT OUR PREFERRED USED CAR WARRANTY
1 YEAR 12,000 MILES

If you purchase a used car and our preferred warranty, you get a one year or 12,000 mile warranty on the entire power train including engine, transmission, differential, etc. If anything goes wrong with the power train, it doesn't cost you one dime.

Safety Checked

Every Used Car We Sell Has Been Checked

Drive With Confidence
Includes: Tires, brakes, lights, horn, windshield wipers, seat belts, steering, etc.

Every car we sell has been tuned with the most modern ultra-violet diagnostic equipment & meets all federal & state standards.

Don't Worry About The Down Payment

If your credit is OK — we'll show you how to finance the down payment with low, low monthly installments.

FREE
10 Day Trial Exchange

Pick any used car and drive it 10 days. Make sure it is the car you want. If you don't like the car for any reason, bring it back and exchange it for any other car of equal value or receive full credit toward the purchase of a later model car or even a new car. You won't lose a dime.
